NEGRO HANGED IN CLAYTON JAIL YEAR AFTER ASSAULT

Right, Mr. Executioner, I'm Ready; Let's Go," says Robert Johnson, 29, and Trap Is Sprung.

HE GOES TO DEATH DENYING HIS GUILT

Victim's Husband a Witness
— She Says She Will View Body and Declares Justice Has Been Done.

More than a year after his hanging, Robert Johnson, Negro, was hanged in Clayton Jail at 11 a. m. today, for criminal assault on Mrs. Mabel Faenger of this city, March 9 last.

It was a last ditch that Johnson made for his 29 years, and the hanging came hard, for it was minutes after his fall through the jail door when physician pronounced him dead.

He was twice a soldier, and at one time in France he served as a medic. He was married, and had a young son, but for some time he had been in the penitentiary for burglary.

Denies He Assaulted Woman.
During last night of his life, the condemned man denies the charge which resulted in his death sentence. He said he had attempted to kill her, but when she persisted in asking for food, he killed her.

"You don't know when you're going to die," he said, "I know when I'm going to die. That's some advantage."

Johnson ate a hearty dinner last night and then he wrote his last will, which was signed up Sunday. He made Bertha Bracy, Negro woman who had been his wife, his executrix.

His last night's sleep was in the new addition to the jail. Called before daylight he put on the new garage suit given him by the county and ate a breakfast companied the deputies and the

w. Walter Riske of University of the main building. He shook hands with other prisoners and gave them his cigarettes. "I'll be back again," a plaintive hymn, was sung by the group and Johnson was then led to the second floor hallway, where the trap had been arranged.

About 100 persons were there to see the execution. Frank Faenger, husband of Johnson's accuser, was one of them. Mrs. Faenger was waiting in the courtyard.

Paroled speech Galloway, Johnson spoke up gallantly when customary privilege of a farewell speech was accorded to him.

"No hard feelings for anybody," he said, "the burden of his life has been a hard one. I have been in the penitentiary for years. I have been in the peni-

NAT GOLDSTEIN AND FOUR OTHER ST. LOUISANS MUST RETURN TO FEDERAL PRISON

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Review Their Appeal From Conviction in Jack Daniel Liquor Plot.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Nat Goldstein and four other St. Louis men must return to Leavenworth Prison to resume serving their terms for conspiracy in the Jack Daniel whiskey removal case. The Supreme Court today refused to review their appeal for a writ of certiorari.

Goldstein, who is former Circuit Clerk of St. Louis, and was for years a leading member of the Republican City Committee, was sentenced to two years and fined $5000. He and the others were convicted in the Federal Court in Indianapolis 14 months ago of taking part in the illegal removal of $30,000 gallons of whiskey from the Jack Daniel warehouse in St.
Louis. He has exhausted his legal resources.

Other St. Louisans and Sentences.
The other St. Louisans and their sentences were:
Michael J. Whalen, former member of the Democratic City Committee, two years and $5000.
Daniel A. O'Neill, former deputy constable, 15 months and $5000.
Morris Mulline, former whiskey dealer, two years and $5000.
Harry Levin, known as "fat," gambler and former deputy constable, two years and $5000.
Harry Stratton, Cincinnati boot-legger and whiskey runner, who defended the St. Louisans in the appeal, also will have to go to prison with them. He got 15 months and a $1000 fine.

The petition to the Supreme Court was drawn up by attorneys
Charles A. Houts, Thomas J. Rowe
Jr. and William Baer, of St. Louis, and four allegations of error were made.

Points of Attack.
Jurisdiction of the Indianapolis court was questioned on the ground that the conspiracy was committed in Missouri and the mere passage of money or whiskey through Indiana did not give that court jurisdiction.

Competency of George Remus of Cincinnati, "King of the Bootleggers," as a Government witness was attacked. A co-conspirator who became the star witness for the Government, Remus now is serving a year in an Ohio jail on an old whiskey nuisance charge.

When these defendants were convicted at Indianapolis, bond pending appeal was refused them and all were sent to Leavenworth Prison where they served 52 days before bail was granted by Justice Butler of the Supreme Court. This time likely will be deducted from the sentences when the men again enter prison, probably within a month.

Former Collector of Internal Revenue Arnold J. Heilmich and his deputy, William J. Kinney, served their sentences in the defendants' case, and are awaiting a new trial.

SENATE VOTES COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE STATE CLERKS

Object of Inquiry Is to Ascertain
If Number Can Be Reduced Without Detriment to Business.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Senate today afternoon adopted a resolution by Senator Painter of California, for the appointment of a committee to investigate the number of state clerks in the various states, and to make recommendations as to whether the number can be reduced without detriment to the State government.

Republican Senators attempted to delay consideration of the resolution until tomorrow but were outvoted by the Democrats.

GIST OF NOTES BORAH EXCHANGED WITH CALLES

Mexican President Said
Only 6 Per Cent of Firms Had Failed to Obey Petroleum Law.

BORAH TELLS WHY HE ACTED DIRECTLY

"If Committee Must Depend on State Department for Information It May as Well Disband."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—President Calles, of Mexico, in a communication sent directly to Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has informed the Senator that 380 companies have complied with the Mexican petroleum law.

The communication, which was in reply to one sent by Senator Borah, was made public today by Borah.

Dated Jan. 24, it listed 22 companies which had refused to comply with the law. Among these companies listed the Standard of Indiana, Doherty & Bridge, Mexican Crude, American International and Mexican Gulf & Capuchinas and Mexican Crude.

Naming the more important of the companies that have accepted the law, President Calles said the 380 companies which have complied have solicited on the whole $43 petroleum concessions on lands with claims previous to May 1, 1917.

"These concessions embrace a total of 28,355,000 acres," the communication said. "The total area prior to May 1, 1917, which the 22 companies possess, who did not comply with the petroleum law, embraces a total extent of 1,551, 000 acres. Consequently the lands which have not complied with the petroleum law represent approximately 6 per cent of the total area of land on which claims exist prior to May 1, 1917. I will send you by mail fuller and more detailed information. I am pleased at the interest which you are taking in this matter and God grant the data submitted to you may be of use."

The message was signed, "affectionately yours."
Senator Borah's message sent on Jan. 22, said:

"If agreeable, may I be advised as to the exact facts of the case of all companies accepting the new petroleum law? How many have accepted? How many have not yet accepted? I would like also to be informed of the names of the more important companies which have not accepted."

WHY BORAH WENT TO HEADQUARTERS FOR HIS FACTS

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Senator Borah said today it was true that some members of the Foreign Relations Committee had objected to his correspondence with President Calles of Mexico.

"Upon what theory I cannot imagine," he said, "I did not understand to act for the committee. All I understood was to obtain certain facts which I needed for my own information. There have been a dozen conflicting statements about the companies that have complied with the Mexican oil laws."

"I wanted to get the facts straight, so I telegraphed President Calles to send them to me; he did.
That is all there is to it."

The fact is that there are several old guard members on the committee who are endeavoring to have the committee's information limited entirely to what it gets from the State Department. It was learned that one of these Senators, in executive session, said to Borah:

"If the State Department doesn't want us to have information, we oughtn't to have it, and we oughtn't to get it from other sources."

Commenting on this situation today, Borah pointed out that it is a common practice of the State Department, especially since Frank Kellogg became Secretary of State, to refuse information on the Senate on the ground that to impart it "would be incompatible with the public interest."

"If we are to accept the rule that the committee can obtain information only from the State Department," he said, "we might as well disband. The department gives us what information it chooses."

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 28.—The right of Senator Gould (Rep., of Maine), to a place in the Senate, was upheld today in the report of the Senate Elections subcommittee, which investigated charges against him.

The subcommittee members recommended that the charges, which revolved about the payment of $100,000 to a Canadian official, be dropped.

The investigation of Senator Gould's qualifications was made at the instance of Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, who based his demands on charges that Senator Gould had turned over $100,000 to former Premier Fleming, of New Brunswick, in connection with a contract for a railroad.

Gould on the witness stand declined responsibility for the payment which he said was a campaign contribution.

He said the contribution was forced upon three of his associates by the contract. The charge against Gould was that the payment was a bribe.

Report of Committee.
The subcommittee is in entire agreement in the case in the following particular:

"The undertaking by the honorable Arthur R. Gould and his associates to build the railroad, was, in the beginning, free from suspicion of dishonesty or fraud."

"The transaction here inquired into had in fact no relation to the selection to the Honorable Arthur R. Gould as a candidate of his party in the primary of 1926 or to his election to the Senate of the United States in the election held in the State of Maine in 1928."

"The transaction occurred more than 14 years prior to said election."

"It affirmatively appears that the Honorable Arthur R.
Gould is a man of good character.
Through a long life in which he has actively engaged in important enterprises, he has borne the reputation as a man of character and integrity."

"The premises considered, your committee recommends that further action in the instant case be not taken and that the rights of the Honorable Arthur R. Gould to a seat in the Senate be confirmed."

DEPUTY ASSAULTED BY HOGAN BROTHERS

Harry J. White Beaten With Butts of Revolvers in Gangster's Saloon.

"Jellyroll" Hogan, the gangster, and his brother, Jimmy, beat up Deputy Constable Harry J. White of Carondelet Township at their saloon, 923 South Broadway, at 11 o'clock last night. White was knocked unconscious with the butts of revolvers and 14 stitches were taken later, at Alexian Brothers Hospital, in the lacerations on his head.

He told St. Louis County authorities that he had gone to Jellyroll's saloon on a tour of inspection, and that Hogan accused him of wearing a badge. Hogan then ordered a truck driver, to stay away from the place.

"You can't butt in on my business," White says Hogan remarked. White admitted that he and other officers had warned Stanton to stay away from the Hogans. He said that without warning Jellyroll and his brother, who is under bond in connection with the bombing of the Liberty Music Hall, Tebbie, held as a witness at the Carondelet Station.

WOMAN CROSSING STREET BEHIND CAR KILLED BY TAXICAB

Mrs. Mary Niewierska Ran Into Side of His Machine, the Negro Driver Tells Police.

ANOTHER AUTO FATALITY IN COUNTY

Russell Aslin of Valley Park Dies of Broken Neck When Auto Plunges Down Embankment.

Mrs. Mary Niewierska, 35 years old, of 1021A Cass avenue, was killed at 11 o'clock last night when knocked down by a taxicab on Cass avenue a few feet west of Eleventh street.

With her husband, Stanley, she just alighted from an eastbound Cass avenue street car and had started to cross the street from behind the car when the accident occurred. The taxicab driver, Robert Ford, 32, of 3214 Lawton avenue, a Negro, said she started running at sight of the cab and collided with the side of the machine. She was sent to the City Hospital in an ambulance, but died when it arrived. Ford was held for the Coroner.

Man Killed When Auto Plunges Down 40-Foot Embankment

The plunge of an automobile down a 40-foot embankment yesterday was fatal to Russell Aslin, 49 years old, of Valley Park, and resulted in serious injuries to John Wesley Stubbfield, 27, also of Valley Park. Elia Goldstein of Manchester, a Negro, owner and driver of the car, was uninjured.

The accident occurred at 5 p. m. on the Barrett station road about a mile north of Valley Park. Stubbfield said Goldstein apparently was confused by the approach of another machine and lost control of the car. Aslin suffered a broken neck and internal injuries. Stubbfield suffered a possible fracture of the skull and a fractured right arm, and was taken to the Bethesda-Dilworth Hospital, on the Big Bend road.

Aslin is survived by his widow, Mrs. Josephine Aslin, and a 2-year-old son, Gerald. The body will be shipped to Idlewild, Tenn., his former home, for burial.

Two Girls Hurt When Auto Hits Truck on Free Bridge

Edward Sickling of 4170 Schiller place, accompanied by Misses Mary and Louise Reich, 17 and 15 years old respectively, of 1329 Pestalozzi street, was driving west over the Free Bridge at 3 a. m. yesterday when his machine collided with a Ford truck standing near the Missouri side. Both girls suffered lacerations of the scalp and cuts and bruises about the body. Sickling was uninjured. The truck had been left by Leo Stewart of 3129A Caroline street, who had walked back to the Missouri shore for gasoline.

which came from the State Department. The "Olds incident," the "bolshevik memorandum," and more recently Kellogg's statement concerning the status of oil companies in Mexico, has destroyed senatorial confidence in the State Department. Borah did not say so, but the fact is notorious.

Effect on Senate

Senator Borah has a resolution pending whereby he can conduct investigation on Nicaragua and Mexico during the recess of Congress. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee refused permission for such a committee to go outside the country but did not object to the resolution of inquiry if hearings were held in the United States.

The fate of the resolution hinges on whether the friends of President Coolidge, who look on the whole movement as a usurpation of executive power, have the votes to limit the proposed hearing to witnesses who are American citizens, or whether the anti-administration Senators will take advantage of the dilemma further to embarrass the President's foreign policy.

INVENTS AUTOMATIC CAMERA

S. M. Fairchild Perfects Device for Use in Plane.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—An invention by Sherman M. Fairchild, President of the Fairchild Aerial Camera Corporation, of the first aerial camera to operate automatically was announced today. It is being developed in co-operation with the United States Army Air Service. The instrument, which can map out an area of 180 square miles at an altitude of 15,000 feet, takes a continuous series of pictures, and records the time, altitude, angle of the camera, date and other details. The camera will enable a pilot in a single-seated pursuit plane to take photographs without the aid of a photographer.

Adventures of Woman In African Big Game Hunt

BARON PAUL VON GONTARD, grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, and the Baroness, photographed at the Ambassador Hotel, New York, upon their return to this country.

Baroness Von Gontard Visiting Here With Husband, Grandson of Adolphus Busch, After Nine Months on Dark Continent.

Few women have braved the perils of the African big game hunt. The Baroness von Gontard, who has just returned from a nine-month hunt in the Tanganyika country of British East Africa.

A dainty, attractive young woman, swathed in a fur coat and wearing a stylish cloche hat over brown bobbed hair, when she arrived in St. Louis yesterday, she did not look the Amazon who had trekked through the country of the deadly sleeping sickness to meet lions and elephants face to face and shoot them down.

Formerly Miss Consuelo Wilson of Philadelphia, she came here with her husband, a grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, to visit the Baron's brother, Adalbert von Gontard. They will be guests at the Von Gontard home on Denny road, north of Manchester road, for a fortnight. After a brief visit to their home in Los Angeles, they went to hunt in the Canadian Rockies.

Big game hunting and the dangers of the wilderness were new to the Baroness when she went to Africa last February. She had hunted with her husband in Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico, and in spite of the hazards of the African expedition, she found it a comfortable trip compared with hunting elk in Wyoming.

During the expedition the Von Gontards bagged one elephant, two rhinoceroses, three hippopotamuses, three elands, three buffalo and eight lions, besides small game. They crossed the Uganda country, during the height of the sleeping sickness epidemic when thousands of natives died from the bite of the tsetse fly.

Starting from Nairobi and working north, the Von Gontards reached the heart of the big game region in the vast extinct crater of Ngoro Ngoro. The crater is more than 200,000 acres in extent and from one point the hunters saw more than 30,000 head of game. Their expedition traversed more than 2,000 miles.

Charged by a Lion

The Baroness reports killing a lion which was more than 11½ feet long and which required 16 porters to carry it. Professional hunters said it was one of the largest ever killed in these parts. On one occasion she fired at a lion sitting under a tree about 100 yards away. The beast charged and was only brought down with another shot. On another occasion the Baron related he brought down a lioness and, thinking it dead, walked over and picked up its tail. But the lioness was merely stunned and staggered to its feet. The Baron had to run for it while his wife hastily fired and killed the animal.

Narrow Escape from Elephant

Again the party came upon a wounded elephant who they tracked all day. It was hiding in a grove, apparently, exhausted from a wound in the chest. The Baron toppled it over with a shot and walked over to be photographed. While he was posing for the camera the elephant revived. The Baron ran a second time, while the head gun bearer fired the shot that killed the beast.

The von Gontards left East Africa in November and spent several weeks in Germany where their choice trophies were stuffed and exhibited. The Baron wrote a 300-page book of his experiences, which he hoped to have translated into English.

CHARGES AGAINST MAN NAMED IN ASSAULT WARRANT DROPPED

Dan Mueller of Lebanon, Ill., Found Not to Have Participated in Attack on William Hearings. Arnold Wolf and Earl LeBogus of Lebanon are held under bond of $10,000 each for the St. Clair County grand jury on charges of assault to murder Justice Hinchings of Belleville. Dan Mueller, also of Lebanon was mentioned in the warrant when it was issued at the request of Assistant State's Attorney Curt Lindauer of Belleville, but the charge against him was dropped when the assistant prosecutor learned that he did not participate in the assault which was made on William Hearings of Lebanon.

Hearings, with a horse and wagon, became mired on the highway when Wolf and LeBogus came along in a machine with Dan Mueller. Wolf and LeBogus became angry when Hearings could not move further to the side of the road and the attack occurred. It is alleged that Hearings was struck on the head with the butt of the pistol.

Heavy Rains Cause Thames Flood.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The Thames is out of its banks, and inhabitants along the valley have been forced to use boats to reach land. The bungalows in the American tourist district of old Windsor and Sunbury are surrounded by water. The river is at the top of its banks at the famous Hampton Court near the palace originally built for Cardinal Wolsey. It is estimated that 27,000,000 tons of rain fell in London over the week-end.

HUNGER STRIKE OF BOONVILLE SLAYER IS ENDED BY DEATH

Charles Reed Who Shot Sedalia Woman in Fit of Jealousy Removed to Hospital Saturday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Feb. 28.—The hunger strike of Charles Reed, 33-year-old farmer and stockman, during his six weeks' detention without bond in Cooper county Jail here, on a murder charge, came to an end yesterday with his death from general debility at the county hospital.

Physicians who treated Reed said his death was a direct result of his refusal to eat during his prolonged period of confinement for the killing of Mrs. Ina Schmidt, 25 years old, of Sedalia, in a fit of jealousy.

Two Suicide Attempts. The prisoner ate bread occasionally and drank coffee and water until about two weeks ago, when his condition became so weakened that attending physicians, following his steadfast refusal to eat solid food, prescribed a diet of milk and a tonic, which he took, believing them to be medicine.

Reed's condition became so serious that he was removed to the hospital Saturday. During his last two weeks in jail a constant watch was kept to prevent him from attempting to take his own life. On the night of Feb. 12 he attempted to hang himself to a water pipe in his cell and later the same evening he tried to sever an artery in his wrist with a jagged piece of pipe. He was restrained in each attempt by cellmates before he could inflict serious injury.

Sanity Hearing Was Set

Because of his unusual actions, he was to have been given a sanity test in Circuit Judge Westhues' court today. Had he been tried on the murder charge, it was believed a jury would have found him insane. Reed, who was arrested after the killing of Mrs. Ina Schmidt, was a resident of Sedalia, Mo., and was a school teacher, residing in Ottumwa, Iowa.

Reed shot and killed Mrs. Schmidt while they were riding in an automobile near Ottumwa, shortly after she informed him that she didn't intend to see him again. They had been keeping company for several months. She was the wife of a Sedalia railroad man. Reed, a widower, has a son, a school teacher, residing in Ottumwa.

SALESMAN FOUND DEAD IN BATHTUB AT ROOMING HOUSE

Dillard M. Carter, 35 years old, an insurance salesman who came here two months ago from Jonesboro, Ark., was found dead in a bathtub partly filled with water in the rooming house at 3200A Arsenal street at 1:30 p. m. yesterday when Charles Raebler, proprietor of the place, returned home. A gas heater in the bathroom was partly on and gas escaping from it apparently had caused death.

Police believed Carter accidentally turned the gas cock partly open after turning off the burner. An inquest will be held.

FRANCE EXPECTS TO MAKE PROVISIONAL DEBT PAYMENTS

Finance Ministry Says It Looks for Early Arrangement With United States. By the Associated Press. PARIS, Feb. 28.—The French Finance Ministry, it is stated, expects soon to conclude an arrangement with the United States providing for provisional payments on the debt funding agreements, which have not yet been ratified. Official confidence that an accord is in sight is taken in some quarters to indicate that Premier Poincare has received a reply from President Coolidge accepting his proposal regarding provisional payments.

$75,000 IN CASH AND JEWELS STOLEN FROM MIAMI STORE

Robbers in Florida City Thought to Have Worked All Night in Blowing Safe Open.

By the Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—The safe of the Sutton & Gibson jewelry store was blown open early today and cash and jewels with an estimated value of between $75,000 and $125,000 stolen.

The robbers are thought to have worked throughout the night. Owners of the store said the exact loss would not be known until an inventory had been taken. The building was damaged by the explosion that wrecked the safe. Dr. L. Lewis and Dr. A. L. Lustgarten, who make their home and have their offices in the store building, were bound and kept under guard by one of the five robbers while the others worked at the safe. Another physician who entered the building last night also was bound to a chair. The robbery was effected at 7:30 a. m.

During the night the guard passed a bottle of whisky to the lips of the physicians and at all times kept them informed of the progress being made.

MRS. LEATHE LOSES APPEAL IN SUIT OVER $359,078

U. S. Appellate Court Rules She Owes Trust Company That Amounts and Interest.

Mrs. Grace A. Leathe, whose inheritance from her husband of more than 1,000,000 was dissipated by unsuccessful deals and disastrous litigation, owes the Title Guaranty Trust Co. $359,078.31 and a large added sum for interest, according to a decision rendered here today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court affirmed a verdict of the district court here, which was based on a report made in October, 1924, by Walter N. Davis as special master in a suit originally brought against the trust company by Mrs. Leathe.

Mrs. Leathe sued the trust company in 1920 for an accounting and judgment as to the sale of real estate the company handled for her. The trust company, in its reply, set forth that it had entered into a contract to guarantee the title to her property, and that it bought up a judgment for about $26,000 against her, to prevent the sale of some of the property. Davis, as special master, found that the company was entitled to a judgment in the amount stated, to which interest for 2½ years has accrued since. Judge Davis approved the report, and Mrs. Leathe appealed.

The various counts of which Leathe was found guilty and the sentence for each were: Engaging in the business of a distiller without giving bond, two years and $1000; defrauding the United States of taxes on distilled liquors, two years and $1000; possession of 21,000 gallons of mash for a business other than that of a registered distiller, two years and $500; concealing 650 gallons of whisky on which taxes had not been paid, two years and $500; possession of an unregistered still, two years and $100.

After conviction Leathe appealed to the United Circuit Court of Appeals, which last August affirmed the conviction. The revenue act was in force before Federal prohibition and was continued in effect after prohibition became effective.

FRANK WEEKE LOSES IN THE SUPREME COURT

St. Louisan's Appeal From Conviction for Liquor Law Violation Is Denied.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Frank Weeke of St. Louis, convicted in the Federal District Court for Eastern Missouri on a liquor charge, was denied an appeal today by the Supreme Court.

Weeks Faces Two Years in Prison Must Pay $2200 in Fines.

The Supreme Court's decision compels Weeke, brother of "Hank" Weeke, former Republican politician, to serve a two-year sentence in Leavenworth Penitentiary. He imposed two years on charge of illegal distilling and depriving the Government of revenue.

His conviction, which included $2200 in fines, was on five counts of violation of the still and mash sections of the revenue act, growing out of a raid on his butcher shop at 2308 Cass avenue, Oct. 15, 1923. Judge Van Valkenburgh of Kansas, presiding at the trial here, imposed two years on each of the five counts, but ordered them to run concurrently. Judge Paris subsequently palmed the butcher shop for a year under the nuisance clause of the Volstead act.

The various counts of which Weeke was found guilty and the sentence for each were: Engaging in the business of a distiller without giving bond, two years and $1000; defrauding the United States of taxes on distilled liquors, two years and $1000; possession of 21,000 gallons of mash for a business other than that of a registered distiller, two years and $500; concealing 650 gallons of whisky on which taxes had not been paid, two years and $500; possession of an unregistered still, two years and $100.

After conviction Weeke appealed to the United Circuit Court of Appeals, which last August affirmed the conviction. The revenue act was in force before Federal prohibition and was continued in effect after prohibition became effective.

ARGENTINA GIVES MILITARY HONORS TO DEAD FLYERS

Cavalry, Artillery and Air Sections Ordered Out for Services for Woolsey and Benton.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 28.—Renewed evidences of sorrow on the part of the population of Buenos Aires over the tragic death of Capt. Clinton F. Woolsey and Lieut. John E. Benton, United States Army good-will aviators, were shown today when the bodies were removed to the steamer Vauban, for the 20-day voyage to New York.
Several thousand persons gathered near the Military Club, where the bodies had lain over night and at St. John's Episcopal Church where services were held. Other hundreds were at the pier.
The funeral cortege was headed by President de Alvear, the Ministers of Marine and War, the personnel of the United States Embassy and Consulate-General and the flyers' companions.
Before the bodies were placed aboard the steamer, funeral orations were delivered by representatives of the Argentine Army, Navy and aviation service.
The biers were covered with the national emblems of Argentina and the United States and with floral tributes from scores of Argentines. A battery in the port of Buenos Aires fired a salvo of guns as a mark of respect for the dead aviators.

Dignitaries Pay Respects.
President de Alvear, who returned from Mar del Plata, expressly to attend the funeral services, was an early caller at the Military Club. He was accompanied by the Ministers of Marine and War and high functionaries of both ministries. There the chief executive presented his condolences to Philander L. Cable, United States chargé d'affaires, and to Major Herbert A. Dargue and his companion flyers.
A few minutes before 10 o'clock the coffins were placed in hearse and taken to St. John's Episcopal Cathedral where a brief service was held. From the church the funeral cortege made its way up the pier.

Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator whose attempted round-the-world flight was abandoned after he had flown from Amsterdam to Tokyo about two years ago, delivered a funeral oration in behalf of the Argentine air service. Bernardo Duggan and Eduardo Olivero, Argentine civilian flyers, who flew from New York to Buenos Aires last year, were among those present at the services. Many women were present.

Funeral services were held for the aviators last night at the American Methodist Episcopal church. The good will flight will be resumed tomorrow with a hop to Argentina, Paraguay.

Major Dargue Describes Crash.
Major Herbert A. Dargue, in command of the squadron, and Lieut. Ennis C. Whitehead, reserve pilot of the New York, had a narrow escape from death in the collision Saturday which killed the two officers. Lieut. Whitehead injured his left ankle when he touched the ground with his parachute and walks with some difficulty. Major Dargue described how the Detroit crashed into his plane, the New York, and how he escaped with his life.

"We were nearing Palomar (15 miles from Buenos Aires)," he said. "There was no wind. We closed up the distance between planes, according to custom, in a formation resembling a diamond, the front and rear planes higher than the machines to the right and left, so they could go lower in case of danger. When the crash occurred the Detroit was to the left of my plane, the New York. At the signal, 'break formation,' the Detroit be-

Mr. Oldywed Advises Mr. Newlywed

Jack Newlywed wore a worried look as he came to the table at his favorite noontime lunching place.

"My wife has asked me to select some Hose for her in a new shade—and I've forgotten the name of the shade. She needs them for tonight, and I can't reach her on the telephone as she is out for the afternoon. A fine fix I'm in."

"Let this be a lesson to you," sagely replied Mr. Oldywed. "My wife has learned from experience that she can get what she wants more satisfactorily by having Stix, Baer and Fuller's 'Telephone Order Service' shop for her. It saves me a lot of trouble and she is never disappointed."

can to leave, but suddenly the Detroit, instead of continuing to open the formation, converged on my machine, hitting it on the left wing.
My machine began to fall rapidly.
I unloosed the straps which bound me in my seat and moved to open the parachute. I was lifted out by the force of the parachute and the rapid fall of the New York.

When the two remaining planes reached Montevideo, Uruguay, they will await the San Antonio, which has been lagging behind the main squadron since it was held up at Tumaco, Colombia, by engine trouble. The San Antonio is now at Talcahuano, Chile, and is expected to reach Buenos Aires Wednesday.

De Alvar Expresses Grief.
"In the name of the people and Government of Argentina," President de Alvar called to President Coolidge, "I desire to send to you an expression of the profound sorrow that has been caused by the accident which resulted in the death of Capt. Woolsey and Lieut.
Beaton."

The Minister of Marine, Admiral
Garcia, called at the United States Embassy to present his condolences to the Charge d'Affaires, Phil An-tergable. Admiral Garcia also sent a message of sympathy to Secretary of War Davis. He said: "I am grieved by the sad accident at Palomar, which caused the death of Capt. Woolsey and Lieut. Beaton, two brilliant North American officers. Convey the deepest expressions of condolences to the United States army in behalf of its Argentine comrades."

SUFFERED WITH PAIN IN NECK AND SHOULDERS

After three days' home treatment got complete relief

Following a severe attack of rheumatic fever, a New York girl suffered for days with excruciating pain in her neck and shoulders.

"After trying everything else," she writes, "my mother persuaded me to let her apply Sloan's Liniment, and after three days I felt no further pain."
It is amazing what Sloan's will do to relieve pain. This is because it doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up the body to throw off the cause of the trouble.

Apply gently without rubbing. Instantly it sends a healing tide of fresh new blood to the place that hurts. In just a few minutes the pain stops. So pleasant and easy to use too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

KIDNAP AND ROB FIVE DANCERS IN OWN AUTO

Two Armed Youths Obtain Only $3.71—Girl Saves Diamonds in Mouth.

When an automobile, in which three young men and two young women were returning from a dance at Bridgeton, stopped in front of 1306 Hosiery avenue at 1 a. m. today, two young men with revolvers crowded in and, upon emphatic request, were driven to Jennings.

There the armed men searched the party, taking 50 cents and a knife from the driver, Edgar Harrelson, 5765A Maffitt avenue; $1.50 from Kermit Bell, 3912 Parnell avenue; nothing from Clifford Gibbs, 3912 Beechwood avenue; Pine Lawn; a ring and $1.71 from Miss Eleanor Jahn, 15 years old of 1306 Hosiery avenue, and nothing from Miss Grace Vesper, 22 of 6330 Page boulevard, who had placed two diamonds rings in her mouth.

Then the robbers ejected the three young men, drove back to within a block of Miss Jahn's home, to eject Miss Jahn and Miss Vesper, and drove away.

Pedestrians, Oil Stations and Store-keeper Held Up.

Meyer Silverberg, 1520 Clara avenue, and his wife, Jeanette, walking home at 9:45 o'clock last night, were held up at Burd and Wells avenues by two men, who stepped out of an automobile and robbed Mrs. Silverberg of two rings, a lavaliere and a bar pin valued at $1250.

Mrs. Lena Padratzki reported she was alone in her grocery at 1904 Franklin avenue at midnight Saturday, when two Negroes entered, ordered cakes, snatched a paper bag containing $300 in receipts and ran out.

Four oil station managers reported holdups last night. They were Jacob L. Rau, manager of a station at 4540 Delmar boulevard, robbed of $103; Mark Cummings, Geraldine and Natural Bridge avenues, $15; John Swondrick, Botanical and Southwest avenues, $17, and John Feipe, 4445 West Florissant avenue, $12.

A young man with a toy cap pistol entered the automobile Mr. and Mrs. Victor Nelson, 4521 Newberry terrace, at Page boulevard and Euclid avenue, at 9 p. m. Saturday, and ordered Nelson to drive north. Nelson drove several blocks, discovered the weapon was a toy, and kicked the intruder out. He then drove to the Dear Street Police Station. Police went back and arrested a youth entering a store. He had a cap pistol and 40 cents, and said he was Ralph Benedict, 19 years old. He was identified by Nelson, and later by Alvin Stone, 14 years old, a newsboy of 4508A Easton avenue, who had been held up and robbed of 40 cents by a young man who had what appeared to be a pistol.

PARIS TO INDO CHINA FLIGHT
Capt. 4 Oley Plans to Make 12,000 Miles in Two Jumps.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Capt. Petletie, 4 Oley, plans a 12,000-mile flight to Indo China, with only one stop, probably in India, both legs of the proposed flight are longer than the Paris to New York trip to which this one will be a prelude.

4 Oley's plane has two 500-horsepower engines. It also carries a landing gear for use of the pilot who is not working.

HIRTH ASSAILS REED FOR FARM BILL VOTE

Editorial in Missouri Farmer Says Senator's Attitude Hurts Presidential Chances.

William Hirth of Columbia, publisher of the Missouri Farmer, has written an editorial for tomorrow's issue of that paper, denouncing Senator James A. Reed for his opposition to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, enacted over Reed's opposition, but vetoed by President Coolidge. He discusses, in the editorial, the possible effect of Reed's attitude upon his presidential candidacy.

"If the Republicans have the good sense to nominate Gov. Lowden," Hirth wrote, "Reed would not only fail to carry a single corn belt state, but for the first time since the Civil War the 'Solid South' would be severely rocked by a nominal Republican candidate for the presidency."

"Reed's star of destiny depends upon two things—first that Gov. Donahay, who has been three times elected chief executive in Ohio, will not ask for the Democratic nomination against him as a militant friend of agriculture, and, second, that the Republicans will be foolish enough to renominate Coolidge."

Attitude Called Mistake. Hirth finds a possible explanation of Reed's attitude by saying that Reed may have decided "to sacrifice the farmer in his effort to convince the Eastern party leaders and newspapers that he is safe and sane." If this was Reed's view, Hirth argues that he made a mistake, as the better way would have been for Reed to make himself so strong in the West that the East would have had to accept him. Reed's "weak" attitude would have helped him in the conquest of the East, Hirth says.

Reed is declared by Hirth to have been "densely and hopelessly ignorant of the true status of agriculture and of the fundamentals and objectives of the McNary-Haugen bill." In this connection, Hirth denies that the farmer would be benefited by "tearing down the tariff wall and placing the nation on substantially a free trade basis." The result of this change, Hirth argues, would be to make commodities cheap and money dear, so that the farmer would have to pay in dollars of greatly increased value the debts which he incurred when the dollar had a smaller buying power.

"Should Have Read the Bill." The late Senator Stone would never have been guilty of such a mistake, Hirth declares. He quotes the sarcastic suggestion of Senator Cummins (Rep.) of Iowa and William B. McKinley (Rep.) of Illinois, and in the House for Representative Lawrence J. Flaherty (Rep.) of California, all of whom have died since the last session. Senators Stock (Dem.) and Stewart (Rep.), both of Iowa, eulogized Senator Cummins as a public servant with highest personal standards and a dominant sense of public duty. Senator Deneen (Rep.) of Illinois praised his late colleague as a "zealous, sagacious, well-informed statesman and a courteous, affable devoted friend."

CONGRESS MOURNS ITS DEAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Memorial services were held yesterday in the Senate for Senators Albert B. Cummins (Rep.) of Iowa and William B. McKinley (Rep.) of Illinois, and in the House for Representative Lawrence J. Flaherty (Rep.) of California, all of whom have died since the last session. Senators Stock (Dem.) and Stewart (Rep.), both of Iowa, eulogized Senator Cummins as a public servant with highest personal standards and a dominant sense of public duty. Senator Deneen (Rep.) of Illinois praised his late colleague as a "zealous, sagacious, well-informed statesman and a courteous, affable devoted friend."

Four Children Die in Fire. QUINCY, Ill., Feb. 28.—Four children lost their lives last night in a fire which destroyed their home at Theford Mines. The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. Vital Ray, ranged in age from 10 years to 7 months. The blaze followed explosion of gasoline with which the father was kindling a fire in the kitchen stove.

BUSINESS BETTER THAN IN DECEMBER

Federal Reserve District Reports It Less Than in January a Year Ago, However.

A high rate of production at textile mills, coal mines, drug and chemical plants and in the boot and shoe industry, accompanied by a decided slump in building activity and a mediocre showing in the iron and steel industry, contributed to the general irregularity of business of the last 30 days in the St. Louis Federal Reserve District, according to a report issued last night.

The wholesale and jobbing trade made a better showing relatively than the retail trade, and distribution of merchandise generally reflected greater improvement than industry. The period as a whole showed improvement over the previous month, although the volume of business was below that of the corresponding period last year.

Business in the coal and lead and zinc mining areas was more active than last year, with collections more satisfactory and demand for goods lively.

YOST ADVERTISING COMPANY

Is advertising ever a "necessary evil"?

Numberless business men okay the expenditure of money for advertising when in their hearts they believe the money is largely wasted. In such cases, they seem to believe that advertising is a necessary evil. Surely if it is an evil, it is not necessary.

Could any business lose by cutting out any expenditure which is not accomplishing a result worth the cost? We are for courage under such circumstances, believing there is nothing to be gained by an unwise expenditure and everything to be gained by cutting off unnecessary costs.

Before cutting off advertising, however, we have only to suggest that an open-minded investigation be made as to whether the advertising can not be made to accomplish definite results at an economical cost.

Very frequently indeed it is not the advertising which is at fault, but the lack of a business-like objective for that advertising. Nearly always it is possible by careful study and clear thinking to so focus the advertising that it accomplishes definite objectives, and accomplishes them at less cost than can be done by any other means.

The big word in this connection is "focusing".
How little advertising really focuses! This company will not undertake a campaign for anybody unless and until it can be shown that there is a clear business objective to be accomplished, and that advertising is the quickest and most economical way of accomplishing it.

The iced coffee spilled all down her dress!

They were at a dance, and during the interval her partner brought her a cup of iced coffee. Some clumsy person moved suddenly and in an instant the coffee poured itself all down her white silk broadcloth dress.

She was hard put to it to hide her annoyance, but she remembered reading one of our advertisements and the next morning rang us up.

We quickly reassured the little lady and in a very short time the dress was back again without a sign of coffee stain and looking just as good as new.

It gives us a peculiar sense of pleasure to be appealed to in such cases and rarely indeed do we fail to give the needed aid.

Whether she's six years old or fourteen, or any of those hard-to-suit, hard-to-fit ages between, there's a party dress for her in this lot. Mother will rejoice to find such pretty ones and rejoice again at their unbelievably low price.

The Dresses are of sheer voile or Swiss, all ruffled from the knee to the waist. Some styles have ruffles of rayon, others ruffles of the fabric, edged with lace. There are straightline Frocks, Frocks with sashes, and some that are smocked. And among them there's sure to be one to suit your critical little Betty Jane.

Maize, blue, pink, rose, lavender and two shades of green are the colors in which the dresses come.

Secret of Houdini's Telepathy Trick Bared

L. C. Kraus, Late Magician's Nephew, Explains That Novel Telephone Device Made it Possible.

Special From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The secret of Houdini's spectacular "telepathy," with which he mystified millions of people before his death, was divulged today. Heretofore, it was believed the secret had gone to the grave with Houdini.

Two years ago the press carried stories of experiments in telepathy conducted by Prof. Gilbert Murray, the Earl of Balfour and others in a London drawing room. The experiments indicated a certain degree of success in thought transference.

Houdini declared there was nothing supernatural about the experiments, and that he could do as well himself by "natural means." He invited a committee to his home, No. 275 West One-Hundred and Thirtieth street, and there duplicated, in part, the experiments.

Houdini's nephew, Louis C. Kraus, who had worked with Houdini in developing the telepathy idea told yesterday how it had all been done. The revelations now ratify the opinion of Thomas A. Edison, expressed Feb. 1, on the subject of telepathy: "I don't believe it is possible." For Houdini employed the ideas of Edison in developing a contraption which would fake the semblance of thought transference.

Novel Telephone Explains It. Houdini wore an electric belt which established an invisible connection, by electro-magnetic induction, with loops of wire concealed under the carpet. The belt, now possessed by Mrs. Houdini, was composed of many turns of fine insulated wire, looped around the body and wrapped with tape. The two ends of this coil were attached to a miniature telephone receiver which could be hidden in the hand, the wires running down the sleeves of the coat of the wearer of the belt.

Thus the trick was to pick up the utterances of the thought transmitters downstairs by means of dictaphones, such as detectives employ, and then repeat these utterances on a strong telephone circuit terminating in the loops under the carpet on which Houdini stood. In this way the spoken thoughts of the impromptu committee in New York were actually carried to Houdini, invisibly through wire and air, but the method was electrical, not telepathic.

Houdini's demonstration in 1925 was conducted in the presence of Ralph Pulitzer, publisher of the World; Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the War Industries Board; Dr. Edward J. Kempf, a psychiatrist; Arthur Train, writer of criminal-legal fiction; Mrs. Herbert Hard Swope; Walter Lippmann, chief editorial writer of the World; Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mrs. Roderick Tower, Mrs. Houdini and Mr. Houdini's brother. An account published at the time says:

"The magician placed the committee in the parlor. He then went to the third floor and remained alone in the front room. The committee below selected three test thoughts following the Balfour method. The thoughts were written down and then repeated in whispers to the close circle three times. Mrs. Houdini and the brother of the magician were in the room, but were asked not to repeat the words.

The Test Messages.

"By Mr. Lippmann: 'I am thinking of Lord Curzon in the foreign office last January.' Houdini failed to get this thought."

"By Mr. Baruch: 'Don't give up the ship.' Failure first time, but on repetition Houdini got 'a sense of heaving water and a ship.'"

"By Prof. Kempf: 'Buffalo Bill's monument in Wyoming by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.' Houdini came down and said: 'I got the picture of a man killing a railroad. He has long hair.'"

Houdini then returned to the third floor, stripped, and was placed in a cabinet under the supervision of Mr. Pulitzer and Mr. Lippmann.

"The thought of the group that remained downstairs in the parlor then was: 'Mrs. John Barrymore's portrait done by Zuloaga.' Houdini caught the Barrymore portrait, but missed the sense of a painting or the name of Zuloaga."

"Although he insisted that what he had done was not thought transference, but an application of natural methods, and scientific knowledge, Houdini refused to explain his method."

Main in Cellar on Telephone. Kraus said today: "The whole house of No. 275 West 113th street was wired. The room in which the committee sat was so completely wired that the least whisper was picked up and carried electrically to an operator concealed in the basement. This operator held a transmitter in his hand and repeated all he heard. His repetitions were carried by other hidden wires to the top floor, terminating in loops under the carpet. When Houdini stripped and climbed into the cabinet he relied on another concealed coil, built into the cabinet. This acted in place of the belt. When the cabinet was closed he slid back a small hidden panel and pulled out an earphone."

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

Mrs. Houdini verified Kraus' story but regretted the disclosure of the secret, as it is an unwritten law of the Society of American Magicians, of which she is an honorary life member, not to explain any of the contrivances whereby audiences are mystified.

INSULT CONTEMPT CHARGE IS LAID BEFORE SENATE

Reed Committee Recommends That Chicagoan, His Lawyer and Thomas W. Cunningham Be Cited

WILL SEEK ACTION
IN DISTRICT COURT

Mitigation Urged in Case of State's Attorney Crowe Who Finally Answered Questions.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Reed Campaign Fund Investigating Committee laid before the Senate this afternoon a formal report recommending that Samuel Insull, Chicago public utilities magnate, Daniel J. Schuyler, his attorney, and Thomas W. Cunningham, treasurer of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania, be adjudged in contempt of the committee and of the Senate for their refusal to answer certain questions. In the absence of Senator Reed of Missouri, the committee chairman, the report was submitted by Senator Goff (Rep.) of West Virginia, a member.

Goff has drawn a resolution, which, it is said, will be introduced in the Senate tomorrow by Senator Reed. This will recommend that the cases of the three real-estate witnesses be certified to the District Attorney of the District of Columbia for prosecution in the courts. The proposed procedure is the same as that followed in the case of Harry F. Sinclair for his refusal to give information desired in the Teapot Dome Oil investigation.

Obduracy and Defiance.
The committee's report, after setting out the pertinent parts of the record in each case, declares that Insull and Schuyler are guilty of "continued obduracy" and that the conduct of Cunningham has been "defiant and contemptuous."

The report recounts the opportunities given the three men to purge themselves of contempt and adds: "Your committee has perhaps exceeded the limit of forbearance in its method of procedure, but it is of the opinion that the Senate's power to punish for contempt should be invoked only in extreme cases and after every indulgence and resource of a committee of the Senate has been exhausted."

Contempt of the Senate may be punished by imprisonment of not less than one month nor more than one year and by a fine of from $100 to $1000. The report describes the effort of the committee to get the three witnesses to modify their "refractory and contemptuous conduct" at the hearing in Chicago. The committee hoped, it is stated, that the witnesses, when given another chance, would answer all questions, so that the Senate would be spared the necessity of consuming valuable time in dealing with them. Therefore, they were summoned again and appeared at a session of the committee here last Monday. At that time the questions they had declined to answer were again read to them.

Crowe to Be Let Off.
Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney of Cook County (Chicago), Illinois, who appeared with the others, supplied information which he had previously withheld relating to the source of a $15,000 contribution to the Crowe-Barrett campaign organization.

"Therefore," the report continues, "the committee recommends that, in the discretion of the Senate, the testimony of the said Crowe be considered in mitigation or rectification of his previous testimony."

The report sets out that Schuyler, though amplifying his original testimony to some extent, refused to disclose the disposition of $40,000 which Insull handed to him in cash or currency for use in the Illinois primary election of last April.

Insull likewise, the report says, "refused to state the specific purpose for which this large amount of money was to be expended and the person or persons to whom it was paid."

Insull again appeared before the committee last Saturday and produced a canceled check for $190,000 which he had written to cover a part of his contribution to the Illinois campaign. Again, however, he refused to reveal the identity of the person to whom the $40,000 was paid, or tell the purpose of the payment.

Insull Gives No Reason.
"Moreover," says the report, "the said Insull assigned no further or valid reasons for his refusal to answer, and repeated his statement previously made, in effect that the Toll Bridges a Public Burden.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH all due allowance for Mr. H. C. Dent's remarks on the subject of toll bridges, in answer to my previous communication, the fact remains that as matters stand, they are an excessive burden on the traveling public and as now set up by investment securities houses they involve huge promotion profits. These profits naturally come out of the pockets of the people. They are capitalized in various forms, but principally in highly "watered" stock.

There are abundant public agencies for the construction of toll bridges. Through such agencies bridges can be built and the profits, if any, returned to citizens in the form of reduced taxes. Representative Oldfield of the House of Representatives at Washington stated recently, concerning toll bridges, in explanation of a bill introduced by him:

"It will enable the citizens of any state or county to build bridges for themselves without drawing upon or sacrificing something which belongs to posterity. Yet they will not be required to assume anything individually or collectively except as underwriters, so to speak, of their own projects, because when construction has been completed and the bridge placed in operation by the county, it will immediately begin paying itself out through the application of all of the tolls, less the actual cost of maintenance and operation."

Private promoters must (in order to obtain a return on their investment) place a charge on all traffic long after their original outlay has been returned to them. Such an outlay on the part of a political subdivision, county or state, may be made at a lower cost than through outside private interests. The public are the beneficiaries when the latter system is followed. Otherwise the toll bridge promotion "game" is a profit to the investment dealers and their customers, and a burden to the community sought to be served, as well as a genuine nuisance to vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

The New Auditorium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN regard to our "municipal auditorium," beg leave to offer the following suggestion in regard to question of gable end construction: Miniature columns to be erected on gable front to conform with larger columns below, to balance entire front; a flat top front or a bald-head gable will not do justice to this great building and to the master minds that have conceived it.

Sheik: An Elderly, Pious Man.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHY does everyone insist upon regarding a sheik as a male vampire? Never was a title so misconstrued. I suppose it is through ignorance of the dignity and standing of a real sheik, and in all probability began when the late Mr. Valentino played "The Son of the Sheik." The word "sheik" (pronounced shayk) means to grove venerably or to be old. A sheik is the head of an Arab family, or a clan or a tribe, also the chief magistrate of an Arab village. The name is also applied to Mohammedan ecclesiastics of a high grade. Do not confuse the son of the sheik (who may be very flippant or amorous or otherwise subtle in the way of flirtation) with his father, the real sheik, who is an elderly, pious man, far from true sheik would be guilty of exhibiting such a contemptible personality as has been ascribed to him by those ignorant of the meaning of the word. It would be just as appropriate to call the male creature now dubbed "sheik"—minister, priest or rabbi.

Why does no one consult the dictionary? What good is the effort to educate the masses if this is the result?

ORIENTAL.

Russia Punishes Grafters.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AM a constant reader of the Post-Dispatch and think it the best paper in the country for interesting news. I would like to ask, why is it that most American newspapers are always scoring soviet Russia for their present system of government? Are not the Russian people just as good as any other nationality along the lines of work and honesty? Would not the Russian people overthrow their present government if it was as bad as some of the newspapers picture it?

Now, then, there is one evil that country will not stand for, and that is political graft or dishonesty, and those who insist on catering to it, usually are lined up against the wall and shot. Law is law in Russia for everybody, and not enforced against the weak only.

NO OIL WAR SAYS BORAH.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations will not tour Central America and Mexico this summer, as proposed in Mr. Borah's resolution, to investigate and study conditions and policies bearing upon the relationship between those countries and the United States. The committee itself turned down the resolution, but, according to a Post-Dispatch correspondent, it will today approve an amended proposal that the committee remain on guard in Washington during the summer recess.

What effect, if any, the reported correspondence between Borah and Calles will have cannot be determined until the alleged correspondence is published.

There was theoretical objection to the original resolution. The President is the constitutional medium of communication in our dealings with foreign countries, and his prestige as such, it was argued, would be impaired by the Borah mission. But valuable as this traditional prerogative is, might it not well be divided temporarily, or in effect waived, in order to avoid the disaster of a war of conquest? So weighty a consideration would seem to justify the expedient. And, anyhow, as Mr. Borah reminds the fierce critics of the Coolidge press, we have two recent precedents for such action. First, the sub-committee of the Foreign Relations Committee which, headed by Albert B. Fall, investigated the Mexican situation in the summer of 1917, and again in 1922 when another sub-committee of the Senate visited Hayti and Santo Domingo to investigate the occupation of those countries by our marines. So far from revolutionary, then, the Borah proposal is fortified by authority of pure Republican mintage.

Whether it is necessary for a detail of Senators to patrol our State Department during the adjournment of Congress from March 4 till the first Monday of December in order to keep the peace with Mexico may be debatable. Manifestly Senator Borah thinks it an advisable precaution. We know of nobody who can competently challenge his judgment. We do know this—it is common knowledge: A short time ago our relations with Mexico were so strained and our intervention in Nicaragua so flammable that Representative Huddleston declared on the floor of Congress that we were "drifting consciously into war." Public opinion reacted to that declaration. It perceived the threat of war in the administration's brusque rejection of Mexico's proposal to submit the differences between the two governments to arbitration. Public opinion rebelled against the coercion of Nicaragua by force. It was amazed and angered by the vague, rambling and uncandid explanation of our Secretary of State.

The situation is apparently less acute now. But nothing has occurred to indicate that the administration has realized and repented of its folly and intends to change its attitude. There are more American Marines in Nicaragua today than when Huddleston spoke. And if the administration has wavered the least little bit in its fidelity to our oil magnates and their investments in Mexico the American people are unaware of it.

Into what colossal and tragic blundering Mr. Kellogg might already have plunged this country except for the vigilant censorship of Congress and the response of public sentiment to that censorship it is impossible to say. Similarly it is impossible to say what our Secretary of State might do with the restraining influence of Congress removed. Certainly Mr. Borah is fearful of the consequences. Accordingly, he proposes to keep watch on our Premier. He does not mind words as to his intention. It is the Borah of old, the untrammeled, uncompromising Borah who says:

"I want it known right now that if this resolution is jockeyed to death the country will not be allowed to forget it. If this administration thinks it can wage a little war with Mexico for the benefit of Doheny and Sinclair, let it go ahead and try it. Maybe it will take something like that to arouse the people to the truth of what is going on here."

This ringing challenge, we are confident, has the American people's enthusiastic indorsement.

THE DALE CASE.

Of all the recent cases of alleged denial of freedom of the press, probably none has so greatly aroused the interest of liberals as that of George R. Dale, the Muncie, Indiana, publisher and editor.

Almost four years ago, Judge Clarence W. Dearth of the Circuit Court of Delaware County, ordered Dale to pay a fine of $500 and serve three months at the Indiana State prison farm, because the editor had declared in his publication that the Judge was a part of a local klan "super government." But the case never achieved more than local importance until the Indiana Supreme Court, in affirming this decision, made the unfortunate error of stating that "the truth is no defense" in a contempt case.

Immediately, there arose a chorus of astonished and indignant cries from parts of the press and liberals generally, and a fund was raised with which to appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court. That tribunal, after once dismissing the case because of a technicality, placed it again on the docket, and will give it consideration in time.

While the liberals of the nation are awaiting the opinion of the Supreme Court upon this important question of principle, how is the editor who brought it about conducting himself? According to a news story of recent date, he has fled to Ohio, and caused his wife to publish an edition of his paper, containing an anonymous letter, in which the declaration is made that Judge Dearth is indirectly responsible for two murders which have occurred recently. When the Judge suppressed this issue of the paper, and charged him with criminal libel, the editor induced some of his friends to petition the State Legislature to impeach the magistrate.

Disregarding entirely the question of the constitutionality of the Judge's action in suppressing the paper, is it not pertinent to inquire whether the editor is conducting himself in a manner proper to one who claims to be waging a fight for the fundamental right to a free press? The old adage about coming into court with clean hands seemingly ought to apply to one contending for a constitutional right even more than to any other sort of litigation.

It would surprise the Nebragans to learn that there is an alarming pacifist movement in the United States.

REFUNDING A BILLION.

The Government has paid back to corporations and wealthy citizens, in the way of tax refunds, approximately $1,000,000,000 since Mr. Mellon became Secretary of the Treasury. Those claims, which frequently run into large figures, are passed upon mostly by unknown, obscure clerks employed at modest salaries.

The practice has been criticised—properly, we think. Moreover, there are intriguing circumstances. Once again behold that bluff, old prospector, Edward L. Doheny and his little black bag. Only this time the bag is on the receiving end of the deal. He is reported to have fared well at this refunding station, and has been appreciative, too. He is said to have rewarded one of those $2500 clerks with a $7500 job, while another clerk who allowed larger claims was given a five-figure position. A royal old boy, Doheny, the kind of chap whom the late President Markham of the United States of "Revelry" would pronounce a Prince.

Of course, this latest version of Doheny's largesse may be mere rumor. But the practice invites that sort of thing. Yet an effort to correct it by a law requiring the Comptroller-General to say the final word on claims amounting to $50,000 or more has been defeated in the Senate.

As a business proposition this bill, it seems to us, was thoroughly sound. Items of $50,000 are not chicken feed. They demand and should have competent, responsible supervision. We should think the plain common sense and obvious prudence of this proposal would appeal to an administration that plumes itself on its business acumen.

Strange to say, though, it was the conservative business element that voted down this bill which was supported by a coalition of impractical Democrats and insurgent Republicans.

What about it, Watson? Inexplicable, you say. The very word.

A 250-YEAR-OLD EDITORIAL.

The more a government strives to curtail freedom of speech, the more obstinately it is resisted; not indeed by the avaricious, . . . but by those whom good education, sound morality, and virtue have rendered more free. Men in general are so constituted that there is nothing they will endure with so little patience as that views, which they believe to be true should be counted crimes against the laws. . . . Under such circumstances they do not think it disgraceful, but most honorable, to hold the laws in abhorrence, and to refrain from no action against the Government. . . . Laws which can be broken without any wrong to one's neighbor are counted but a laughing-stock; and so far from such laws restraining the appetites and lusts of mankind, they rather heighten them.

This was written 250 years ago by a Portuguese Jew living in Holland. His name was Spinoza and he is regarded as the greatest philosopher of modern times. Nothing has happened since he died in 1677 to warrant the change of a single word in this passage, and we reproduce it as a piece of brilliant editorial comment on the passing political show in the United States as of this year of our Lord, 1927.

"ASK ME ANOTHER."

The cross word puzzle game, which has been enjoying these many months, is not destined to die without issue. To fill its place there has been born the game of "Ask Me Another." All you have to do to play this game is think up a lot of difficult and unnecessary questions, and then go about demanding answers of everyone you meet.

We suppose the new game, like its predecessor, will become a craze, but we should like to point out, at this early stage, two very real dangers which accompany it.

The first is the possibility that persons who are lucky enough to be able to answer most of these lists of questions may come to think that they have demonstrated education. For these mistaken ones we recommend a frequent recalling of the reply of Einstein, when he was asked a number of stickers by an American newspaper reporter. "I don't know the answers to your questions," said the famous scientist, "but I can tell you where you can find them."

The other danger connected with this new game is the physical risk which the questioners will run. Going about demanding answers to puzzling questions has never been a very safe avocation. Consider the case of Socrates. He was unmolested so long as he confined his inquiries to himself and his immediate associates. When he started wandering about Athens and pestering the free and self-respecting citizens with a lot of puzzling queries, he immediately was precipitated into the series of difficulties which ended with his execution.

So the devotees of the new game had best do their playing with considerable caution. The attitude of the world has altered toward some things since the year 399 B. C., but its aversion for the person who propounds needless questions is as strong as ever.

Mr. Coolidge has signed the seed loan bill, by which $5,000,000 is made available to farmers for this purpose. If anything comes up, that is their concern.

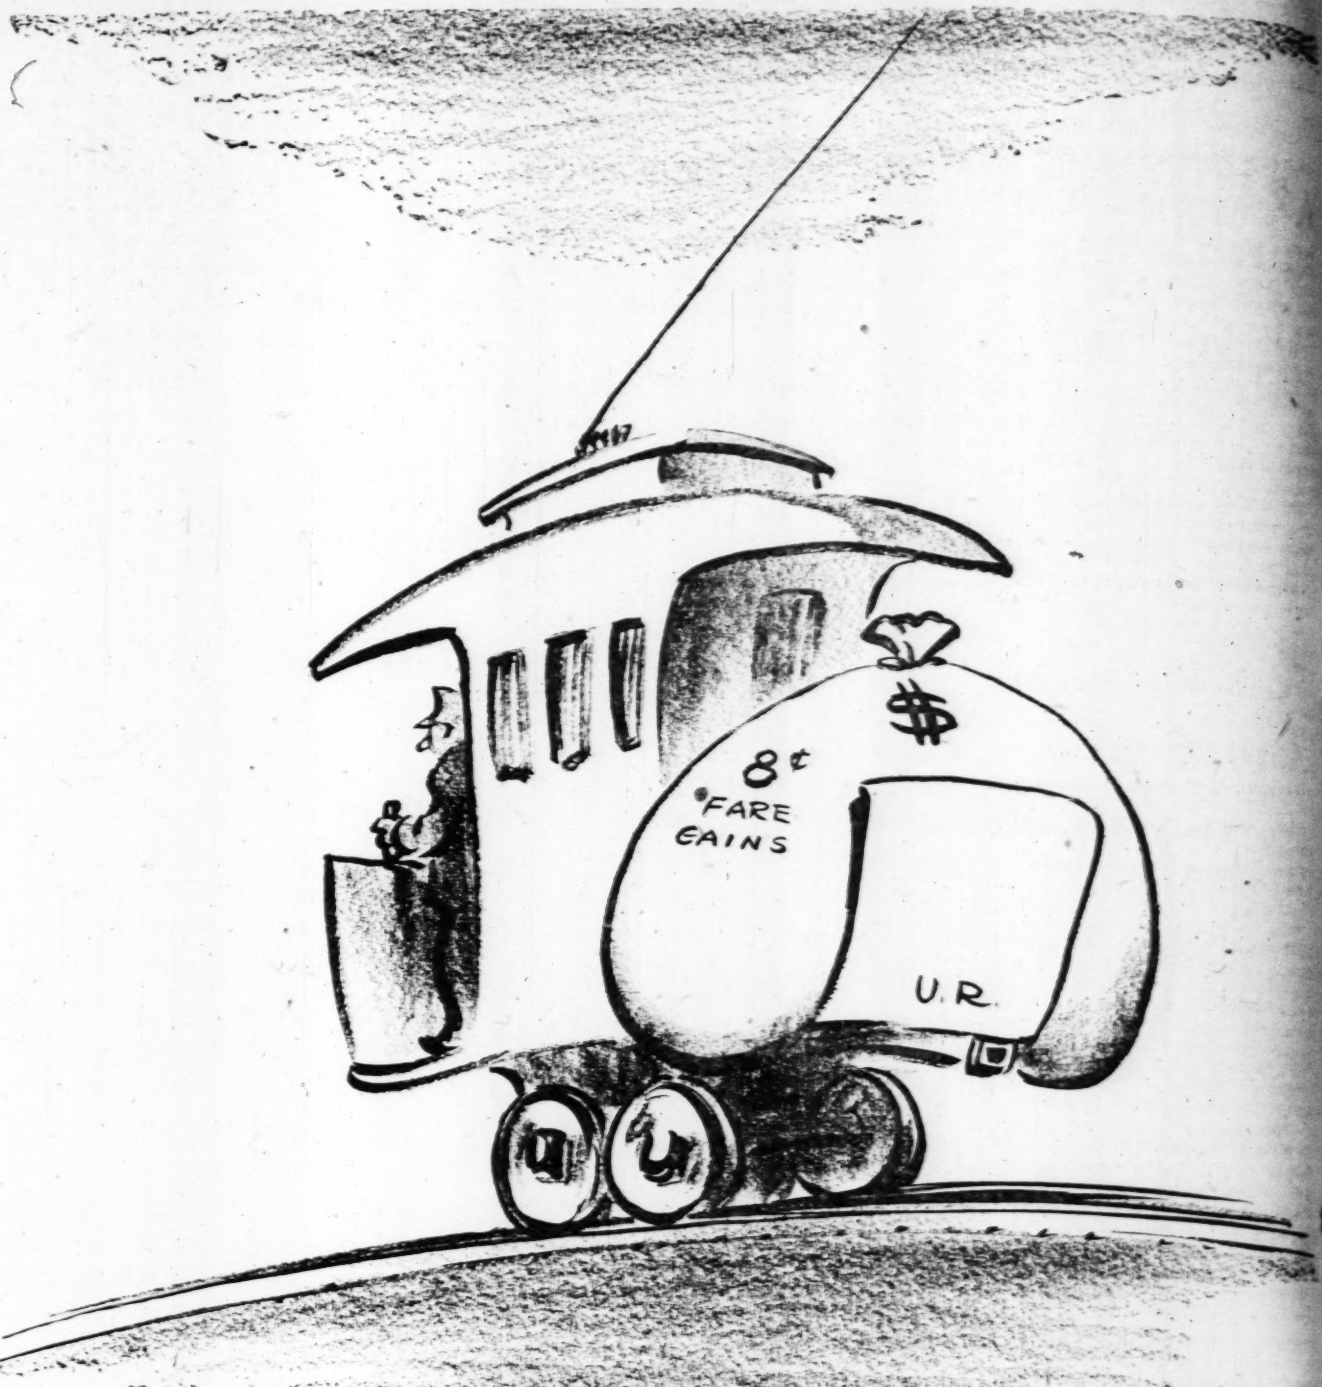

THE BABE GRADUATES.

Babe Ruth, the infant terrible of baseball, has shattered the silence which has enveloped him during this long, bitter, parlor winter. Our hero, it too clearly appears, has an itching palm—in fact, a pair of six-cylinder itching palms. He wants $100,000 a year for lapping the "old apple." He wants a two-year contract. And by way of lagniappe, he demands reimbursement in the amount of $7700 which had been deducted from his stipend for certain departures from discipline in his primrose past.

Perhaps the Babe's boss, after first-aid treatment, will wonder what has happened to his boy wonder. It is as clear as a smokeless morn to us. One word explains it. Hollywood. When the Babe made his pilgrimage to that Pachtolan Mecca we knew the climax of this baseball saturnalia would ultimately pop. In that golden orbit the values, the honoraria, the quid pro quos—Oh, call 'em what you will—all wear wings.

The Babe has at last awakened to a true appreciation of his consequence and worth in the roaring arena of our national game. He is now a distinguished alumnus of the University of Hollywood.

MISSOURI ITEMS.

RALPH COOHLAN in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

WE in Missouri have just had a very enjoyable time with a monkey bill, which is at the moment lying abandoned in the legislative ash can at Jefferson City. It was introduced early in the session of the Legislature by Stone Age Jackson and Uncle Sam McDaniel, two of the solons from the hinterland.

The Legislature received its introduction with a shout of joy, because this session has been unparliamentary dull. The bill never had a chance. However, while the learned savants at the State University held their tongues, the professors of Washington University, a nonpolitical institution, declaimed against it with more seriousness than was necessary, and a group of St. Louis preachers advised the fundamentalists from the Ozarks in a public statement to lay off.

The bill was killed by a vote of 52 to 62, which is not perfect, but pretty good considering some of the specimens which the Ozarks send to Jefferson City. . . . But life has its glum side. We have been working for two years on a criminal law survey designed, without abrogating any one's constitutional rights, to make it safe to walk on the streets. You may not have heard of our gangsters. We have a young crook just growing up. What was left of Egan's Rats and Hogan's Jellyrolls after they shot each other up two or three years ago are in Atlanta and Leavenworth now. But the youngsters are good shots and very greedy.

So we got up this survey and presented its result—24 criminal code reform bills—to the Legislature. With all its other qualities, the Legislature is full of lawyers who have made a lot of jack defending criminals. So the bills were doomed. Fortunately we have an initiative law in Missouri and we may have to use that to get the thing across. . . .

EVOLUTION OF MEXICO.

ISAAC F. MARCOSSON in the Saturday Evening Post.

IT was on the automobile trip to the fiesta with him that I first observed Calles' utter disregard of danger. We had left all the guards behind us at the train. As we rode through the streets anybody might have taken a pot shot at him. Nowhere in Mexico is Calles more cordially hated, than in Torreon, the seat of a strong reactionary group. I said to him that I was surprised that he had taken no precautions for safety. The President answered: "I am a fatalist. If anyone wants to get me, he will." He then began to talk about agriculture, which is close to his heart, saying: "This is the heart of one of the richest agricultural regions of Mexico and the center of our cotton belt. I want to diversify crops and have given instructions for the reduction of the cotton area and the cultivation of alfalfa and wheat. The trouble with the Mexican farmer has been that he sticks to one crop and does not rotate. I am a farmer myself and know what the country needs."

At the athletic field Calles received a tumultuous greeting. Still insisting that I remain by his side, he passed through lines of singing school children, who threw flowers in his path while the band played the Mexican anthem. The first part consisted of native dances, including among others, the jarabe, the national dance of Mexico, performed by two very attractive girls, one of them dressed as a man. As we watched the children, Calles turned to me and said: "This is the new material out of which the new Mexico is being fashioned." Then, pointing to some blanketed ponies who stood in the shadows, he added: "These children represent the evolution from the primitive types you see there. Whatever his mistakes, Calles undoubtedly has a sincere desire to uplift his people."

AMERICA'S MELTING POT.

From the New York Times.

THESE revelations, coming so close on the discovery that George Washington and Theodore Roosevelt were Swedes, are a little disconcerting to those Americans who had innocently believed the earlier records of their country's history. Some years ago an Irishman wrote a book to show that it was the Irish who won the Revolution for America. A Belgian has recently tried to prove that Belgium, and not Holland, discovered and settled New York. There is excellent testimony to prove that everything good done in this country was the work of a foreigner. This might seem to dispose of our fondest conceit—that there is such a thing as the American people. If all the claims of all the alien groups were added together, it would be found that there is no room for claims presumptuously put forward by self-styled Americans. The obstinate blindness of the human animal is, however, proverbial. Despite the conclusive proofs that there are no real Americans, a number of persons—totaling, probably, well over a hundred million—will persist in the illusion that they are not transplanted aliens, but Americans, and that American history was made not by foreigners but by Americans, even though some of these happened to have been born under another flag.

Did you see that flapper go out with her ugly looking old bird? Some women ain't got no taste.

Well, stick it in your pocket; the Chink won't notice it.

Give him the tip; don't leave it on the table; he don't collect the dishes.

More of the English Replica Series

A SHORT while ago attention was given in this column to one of the English Replica Series now being published in America by Payson & Clarke of New York. This was the Lyric Ballads of Coleridge and Wordsworth, issued at Bristol in 1798. The volume was something to justify the rejoicing of a booklover; and, for once, at least, price was no object. Almost anyone, however pushed for funds, can save enough in a few weeks out of his appropriation for minor follies to purchase the whole series.

It is a pleasure to report upon five more numbers of the series just received. First we have a photographic reproduction of Shakespeare's sonnets, "Never Before Imprinted," published in quarto, probably without the poet's authorization, in 1609. This is the only authority for the text of the sonnets, except for two that appeared in the "Pamphlet" "Purgatory" in 1599 and 1612.

Next in chronological order we have "The First and Second Anniversaries" of John Donne, printed in 1621, consisting of "An Anatomy of the World" and "The Progress of the Soule," poems inspired by the untimely (and religious) death of Mistress Elizabeth Drury.

Then we have "Poems of John Milton, both English and Latin, printed by his true copies" in 1645. However, the second half of the book, containing the Latin poems, has been omitted here. This is the volume in which first appeared "On the Morning of Christ's Nativity," "L'Allegro," "Il Penseroso" and "Lycidas."

John Collins' "Odes on Several Descriptive and Allegorical Subjects" (dated 1747, but printed in 1746) and William Blake's "Poetical Sketches" (1783) complete the list of volumes already issued in this admirable series. Many more are to follow. All the volumes thus far issued are reproduced from copies in the British Museum.

THE DISTRIBUTION AGE, by Ralph Borsodi. (Appleton.) HIS authoritative, yet easily readable study of production and distribution is well calculated to make the more intelligent reader sit up and think. It is a volume in which the past half century the cost of distributing the necessities and luxuries which we consume has nearly trebled, while the cost of producing them has been reduced about one-fifth. In this connection the author points out that if the present rate of increase in the distributing organization continues for another half century, there will be more people engaged in selling advertising, delivering and transporting than in producing. Evidently we have lost more in the increasing cost of distribution than we have gained by the decreasing cost of production.

FRANK FAY TOPS UNUSUALLY ENTERTAINING ORPHEUM BILL

Cleanly, clever comedian, Ross Wyse Jr. and other worth while folk offer good program.

Frank Fay, comical and much at ease, is headlining an unusually smart vaudeville program this week at the Orpheum. Ross Wyse Jr. and his capers are running Fay's close popularity race. Fay's songs and monologue patter, the latter scattered throughout the program in master of ceremonies fashion, provide headlining that is of a high order. Young Mr. Wyse, with his Ma and Pa as capable foils, stopped the show completely yesterday with his handkerchief contortion trick and his dancing.

There isn't a dull moment, which is most unusual in vaudeville nowadays. The program is a real show, and it's a good thing. Jack Norton's good-natured "jag" sketch and the droll fun of Lewis and Dady, of "Hello, Hello, Hello" fame and Weber's Dixie orchestra—if they'd only eradicate the wigwag act and add to the general good time.

The film play, "The Better Way," is a dandy for a commendable change. It tells a convincing story of love and the Wall Street ticker.

The proposed research laboratory will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Max Farrand, formerly professor of history at Yale University, who will enter upon his duties Oct. 1.

The Week's New Films

By NIE

WITH some 10 months in the year still to come it may seem a trifle early to pick The Worst Picture of 1927 and yet it will be a terribly difficult matter for any film to snatch that honor away from "A Kiss in a Taxi," which is at the Missouri this week.

Bebe Daniels, who has been making some fairly amusing pictures of late, is the unfortunate star of this story which seems to be about a husher in a Paris cafe who objects to being kissed. Going upon the theory that if you do anything two or three times it becomes funny, the director makes Bebe break a dozen wine glasses every few feet in the film and when extra laughs are hoped for she breaks two dozen.

Douglas Gilmore, Bebe's new leading man, has the loveliest permanent wave shown in celluloid to date, but there is nothing else about the picture to attract attention. On the stage a hotel dance orchestra drops to the same level of the film from the point of entertainment.

Just Another Picture. IT SEEMS only a season or so ago that Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon were the best looking couple on the legitimate stage yet it must have been longer than that for this week down at the Ambassador Miss Shannon is playing a motherly old woman in "Just Another Picture." Time was when she herself was considered as pretty a fair haired young woman as ever held up the Frohman banner on high, but now, in this picture, the blonde is Dorothy Mackall and Miss Shannon's golden tresses have turned to silver. We never found out exactly what "Just Another Picture" was all about. The author failed to say and there is nothing much in the film to enlighten one although it appears to show how an honest young gambler who hates all women—although he certainly is good to his mother—can be snatched from the roulette tables if he meets a girl who is light headed enough. If you happen to see "A Kiss in a Taxi" first this one will seem almost good.

Still Another Blonde. MAE MURRAY, who used to play blonde butterflies and "glided lilies and things of that sort," is a fair-haired Spanish senorita in "Valencia" at Loew's. Jumping to Barcelona is not the only change Mae has made. She has grown something which looks suspiciously like a double chin. However, she is so attractive that the Governor-General of Barcelona falls for her the first time he sees her and uses his first influence to break up a love affair. Mae was having at the moment with a poor but handsome sailor boy. For six reels or so the Governor, curse him, divides his time between making love to Mae and trying to have the sailor shot at sunrise. About the worst he can do, however, is to have Lloyd Hughes—Lloyd is the sailor—exiled from Spain forever, which is not such a severe punishment after all, especially as Mae manages to sail with him on the same boat. "Valencia" is a pretty made picture with not much of a story and with far too many subtitles.

A Brave Lion. WHEN Jack Holt's tame mountain lion, named Mike, sprang into the midst of four bad men armed with heavy revolvers and put them to flight at the start of "The Man in the Forest" at the St. Louis yesterday, we predicted a bright future for both the lion and Jack. So it proved. This westerner goes as far West as a westerner can get, you bet your Rocky Mountains. Six times the villain shoots at Mike at a range of five feet and six times Mike dodges the bullets. He knocked the last one down with his paw. The moral of the picture is that only a man with High Purpose can hit the side of a barn. Of course he has to have a Colt, too. Jack has two Colts and in the battle to save the girl and her ranch he fans his guns from the roof of a hotel at the crowd of bad men 150 yards down a dark street. Fifteen bad men fall off their horses. But that's nothing. When Jack takes his Winchester—well, dead men tell no tales. The vaudeville this week is a little truer to life, all except the voice of one soprano.

A New Sensation. HOW a flapper goes on yachting parties and does other darning things, sometimes in Oriental costume, and then turns to the church and a mispinner for a final thrill is not very convincingly set forth in "Sensation Seekers" at the Grand Central. Billie Dove is the flaming youthless who is headed for the devil until she bumps into the church and marries the young minister. He seems fairly well satisfied.

'SQUARE CROOKS' GET A BREAK AT EMPRESS

FOR such credulous optimists as still believe in Santa Claus, the Easter rabbit and good men, the National Players at the Empress this week are presenting "Square Crooks," from the pen of James P. Judge, whoever he may be. The vehicle will have to be chalked up as one of Director O. Woodward's bad guesses. The performance, however, is quite up to his usual high standard.

The piece has never been seen before in St. Louis; it is hardly likely that it will ever be seen here again after this week.

Two honest ex-burglars become unfortunately involved in the theft of a string of pearls and the murder of a child. A dishonest detective-sergeant is determined to send the noble pair up the river, but with the assistance of the wife of one and the sweetheart of other, and a friendly desk sergeant and a kindly landlady, surely honest virtue emerges unscathed and takes a bow for the final curtain.

The talents of Don Burroughs, Hazel Whitmore, Lora Rogers, Edward Darney, Robbie Reed and J. Raymond Brown are wasted on such nonsense.

DYNAMITERS BURN TAXICABS AND GARAGE

Unexploded Sticks Found After $6700 Fire — Cuckoo Gangster Sought.

After an explosion and fire early yesterday had caused damage estimated at $6700 to the building and contents at 3332-34 Washington boulevard, occupied by the Green Cab Co., and the Washington Automobile Laundry Co., police found three sticks of dynamite in the tunnel of a taxicab.

The dynamite was wrapped in newspaper with a fuse attached which evidently had been ignited and burnt out. Police threw the dynamite in the river.

The explosion was heard at 2:45 a. m. The fire which followed destroyed five automobiles, including two new taxicabs, and damaged a third taxicab, in which the dynamite was found, two other automobiles and a truck. The taxicab and auto laundry companies were operated by Robert, Howard and Julius Reiser, brothers. The building was owned by Theodore Pokres.

Police learned the Reiser brothers "expected trouble" for some unknown reason, and had stationed William and Floyd Swafford, brothers, as guards, but they became cold and went home 90 minutes before the explosion. A few minutes before the explosion a Lincoln roadster, occupied by several men, was seen leaving the rear of the building. A Cuckoo gangster who owns such a car, will be questioned.

WOMEN'S SCHOOL TO CONTINUE

Suggestions that Synodical College, at Fulton, Mo., the only Presbyterian College for Women in the State, be done away with, and that Westminister College, now a men's school, be made co-educational, have been rejected by the committee in charge of educational affairs for the Missouri Presbyterian Synod.

A campaign to raise funds for Synodical College thus far has brought in $315,000, and it is planned now to extend the campaign until $600,000 has been raised.

BURGLAR UNLOCKS SAFE, OBTAINS $1400
New Owner of Meat Shop at 323 De Baliviere, Victim of Second Theft There.

After losing large sums to robbers on two occasions in seven months, Eloy Graslneck sold the Thomas Market, a grocery and meat shop at 323 De Baliviere avenue, to William Frank of 5742 Page boulevard, last week. The new owner changed the name to Frank's Market and did a prosperous business over the week-end.
This morning he found the safe door standing open, and he reported, between $100 and $1500, the Saturday collections, was gone.
The thief had unlocked the safe.
The burglars had broken a basement window, crawled over a pile of ashes and smashed a door panel leading to the store. Patrolman Allen, who passed the store at 11:45 last night, said he observed the safe door standing open, but presumed the proprietor had left it so.
The former proprietor, Graslneck, was held up Feb. 7 and robbed of about $2000 cash in the store. Last July Graslneck's wife was held up by two robbers who boarded her automobile while she was taking $1200 to a Delmar boulevard bank.

Safe Robbed of $500 at Remley's Maplewood Market.
Since there is no physical evidence of anyone forcing the locks, windows or doors of Remley's Market, 1134 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, police believe that a robber concealed himself in the store before it was closed Saturday night afterwards opening the safe and escaping with $500 in cash and checks. The safe combination was knocked off with a hammer. The robbery was discovered at 8 a. m.
today when the store was opened for business.

HUNTING CLUB BUYS 8000 ACRES IN CRAWFORD COUNTY

Group of St. Louisans Requires Site for Preserve of Meramec River Near Scottia.
A group of St. Louisans, including a number of Republican political leaders, have formed the Hunting Club, which has acquired 8000 acres of land for a preserve in Crawford County, Mo., around the junction of the Meramec and Coursewicks creeks, and bordered for six miles on the north by the Meramec River. The location is near the village of Scottia, northeast of St. Louis and about 15 miles south of a new State park in Franklin County, and in a section of wooded Ozark hills.

About $81,000 was paid for the land. A clubhouse is being planned. The organization has 105 members now and a prospective limit of 400. Henry Mueller, president of the Cherokee National Bank, is president, and directors are Gus Kron, Dr. D. C. Todd, Circuit Clerk Schmoll, Julius Seidel, Park Commissioner Pape, Dr. S.
T. Vandover, Dr. Val Kunz and Rodowe. Abeken. Among the members are Collector Koehn and Circuit Judges Hamilton and Ossing. Edward Crossman, a real estate man, promoted the organization.

21 CONVICTIONS IN 10 DAYS IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY COURT

victed or who entered pleas of guilty in St. Clair County Circuit Court in the last 10 days, a record for that period of time. With the exception of William Nydyl, found guilty by jury of an assault with a deadly weapon and given a term in jail, the defendants will be sentenced to the penitentiary. They are:

Tell us what Bond Bread has meant to the health of your child—

You may win a big share of this

$1,000

Your letter on "What Bond Bread has meant to the health of my child"—accompanied by your child's photo—has a wide-open chance to win $250 for you. Or you may win one of the 160 other cash prizes. Ask your grocer for the folder of simple contest rules.

'Twas at the St. Louis YWCA 8 years ago

PROMPTLY at nine o'clock on Saturday morning, November 22, 1919, the doors of the Y. W. C. A. swung open to admit hundreds of St. Louis women.

All morning, grandmothers, mothers and daughters flocked to the Y. W. C. A. They totaled 2315 people. Each carried a fresh-baked home-made loaf, which they entered in the Bond Bread baking contest.

That afternoon other women, prominent in St. Louis social and business life, dietitians and domestic science experts, came to the Y. W. C. A. They cut the loaves, weighed them, tasted them and finally awarded prizes to those whose loaves indicated the best home-baking skill.

Perhaps you were one of the contestants. You may remember those long rows of tables covered with home-made bread—fresh-baked that morning. The Y. W. C. A. was filled with the fragrance of mother's kitchen on bread-baking day. In this atmosphere, Bond Bread was born.

FOR 8 years, thousands of St. Louis housewives have been serving Bond Bread on their tables every day. Many of these women formerly baked their own bread at home.

Why did they give up baking and adopt Bond Bread?

It is a simple secret. Bond Bread is home-like. It is made of the same pure ingredients that housewives themselves would use. It is frankly copied after the best of 43,040 home-made loaves which housewives submitted in various baking contests in 18 different cities.

Yes, there were 18 different contests. One of them was held here in St. Louis at the Y. W. C. A. on November 22, 1919—8 years ago. Prominent local women acted as judges.

After the contest here 8 years ago, one judge remarked: "This contest awakened people to the fact that bakers' bread might be 'home-like.' It is now up to makers of Bond Bread to prove whether or not such a thing is possible."

With each of the past 8 years Bond Bread's popularity has grown steadily. By insisting on more Bond Bread each year, St. Louis housewives have voted it to be continuously the nearest to home-made.

Most mothers choose Bond Bread for the sake of their children's health. These mothers appreciate the fact that children eat more bread when Bond is served, simply because they like it so keenly. And most mothers realize that the pure ingredients in Bond, plus its thorough home-like baking, make it about the most healthful food a child can eat.

Since that baking contest 8 years ago nearly 145,000 children have been born in St. Louis and its vicinity. Thousands of them have known no other bread but Bond Bread. It has probably helped your children, too. Tell us what Bond Bread has meant to their health. Write us a letter and send us a photograph of your child. You may win one of the big cash prizes. The column at the right tells you how to try for the big awards.

Here are the big cash prizes:

Suppose you were to win the first prize of $250. Suppose you deposited it in a savings account for the youngster whose photograph accompanied your letter. It would probably draw 4% interest. At the end of 15 years your child would have $454.13 credited to his or her account.

Or if you won any of the other 160 cash prizes, what a nice way to start a savings account for the child who helped win it. So plan to enter now. Winners' checks will be mailed within a few days after the judges have reached a decision. The photographs will be returned shortly thereafter.

The names of the 161 cash prize winners will be announced in this paper on Thursday, March 10th.

Here are the prizes—liberal ones, and a very simple contest for any parent:

1st prize	$250.00
2d prize	100.00
3d prize	75.00
4th prize	50.00
5th prize	25.00
6th prize	15.00
7th prize	10.00
8th prize	9.00
9th prize	8.00
10th prize	5.00

And 151 other prizes of $3 each

Ask your grocer for free entry blank

THE rules are simple. They are all printed on the entry blank that your grocer has for you. A photograph of your child and your letter on "What Bond Bread has meant to the health of my child" is all that is necessary to enter the contest.

No red tape. An ordinary amateur snapshot would be as good or better than a professional photograph. As for the letter, a grammar school graduate has as much chance to win as a college professor. The style of the letter will count nothing. Only the ideas expressed will be taken into consideration by the judges.

But plan now to enter at once. The contest closes Sunday night, March 6th. Mail your entry to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, marked "Attention of Bond Bread Contest Committee." It must be postmarked before midnight of March 6th, 1927.

WELLSTON SOCCER TEAM OVERWHELMS JOHNSTON CITY IN CUP CONTEST

St. Louis Title Candidates Score Nine Goals to Foes' One; Opponents Very Slow

Victory of Tate Brady's Players Will Send Them Against the Ben Millers in the Next Cup Assignment—Only 1700 Persons View Contest.

By Herman Wecke.

Two St. Louis professional soccer teams remain in the hunt for the National championship as a result of the 9 goals to 1 victory scored by the Wellstons over the Johnston City, Ill. eleven, before 1700 persons, at Sportsman's Park yesterday. In running up nine goals, the men of Tate Brady established a new Western cup record for points scored in a title game. The previous mark was eight.

As a result of the victory the Wellstons qualified to face the Ben Millers, local league leaders, in the second round. This contest will be decided March 12. The Wellstons completely outclassed the Johnston City entry. The Illinois eleven came here with a record of having won eight games this season. However, against the Wellstons, the aliens showed nothing. In fact, only one member of the team, Currie, inside left forward, exhibited soccer ability. For the most part the Johnston City players were too slow. On a majority of plays they were one or two steps in back of the St. Louis speedsters.

Easy Day for "Goalie" Diel. So puny was the attack of the Southern Illinois team that Leo Diel, between the uprights for the Wellstons, got his hands on the sphere on not more than five occasions. Throughout the entire 90 minutes of battling the Illinois team had but one real shot at goal. This came after 16 minutes of play in the closing period, when Hebbinger "handed" just outside the penalty area and Currie made good on the resultant free kick to save his team from a whitewashing.

There were few raids by the Johnston City forwards. A majority were broken up before they ever reached the Wellston penalty area. It was entirely different with the Wellstons. With a fast side, the men of Brady made ample use of their fine passing attack to get into scoring position. During the play, the locals had no fewer than 25 shots. While the Wellstons were credited with nine goals, only one was disallowed because of offside. Then "goalie" Robinson helped keep the tally down by making no fewer than nine saves, several of them of the sensational variety. A number of Wellston raids were broken up because of offside, the local forwards being caught in this position by Referee Murphy four times.

What the Figures Show. The following statistics show the unbeaten Illinois team was outplayed:

	W.	J.C.	W.	J.C.
Shots	25	13	0	12
Stopped	0	4	0	5
Corners	4	1	4	3
Fouls	1	2	5	1
Free Kicks	2	4	1	0
Offside	3	0	1	0

As has been the case in a majority of the Wellston games this season, Bill Lehman was an outstanding star. This player, with each succeeding contest, gives evidence of being the best center half developed here in years. He was all over. Either he was feeding his forwards to advantage or he was shooting at the goal. He's one of those athletes who keeps the opposition guessing at all times. Lehman gets more kicks during a game than any player on the field and the tilt with Johnston City was no exception.

Whistons Start Early. Lehman figured in the scoring of the first goal after four minutes of play. He passed to M. Hart, who sent the ball into the net. Robinson having no chance to save. Four minutes later Corrigan took a cross from O'Reilly and slammed one into the net. At 14 minutes, E. Hart counted on a pass from O'Reilly, while at the 24-minute mark Corrigan's pass to E. Hart resulted in the fourth goal for the locals.

With six minutes of the second half gone, Corrigan took a kick from Lehman, beat the two Johnston City fullbacks and pushed the sphere past Robinson. At 15 minutes Ahrens took the ball near midfield and his dash did not halt until after he had scored. It was a minute after this that Currie tallied on a free kick for the Illinois team. In the last 10 minutes Ahrens, Corrigan and E. Hart tallied to raise the Wellston total to nine.

A round of league games will be played next Sunday after which will come the Wellston-Miller game.

BABE RUTH'S SALARY DEMAND WOULD GIVE HIM $650 A GAME

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Babe Ruth's salary demand of $100,000 a season would give the New York slugger an income at the rate of almost $650 a game for 154 games. For a regular nine-inning contest he would receive about $72 an inning. Splitting the inning income in halves, for fielding and batting, he would get about $36 for each half. Catching three flies in one inning to retire the side would net him about $12 for each ball caught. For each of four trips to the batter's box in a game he would receive about $80 whether he makes a home run, walks or fans.

MRS. PARDEE RETAINS SOUTH ATLANTIC TITLE

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28.—Mrs. Dorothy Kline, of Chicago, yesterday for the second consecutive year, won the South Atlantic women's championship, 1 up on the twenty-first hole. She defeated Miss Marie Orcutt, 19-year-old Metropolitan champion.

Extremes Meet.

BABE RUTH, the greatest long-distance hitter in baseball, demands $107,500 for the coming campaign. Failing to receive this he will immediately attempt to starve himself by embarking in the promotion of a chain of gymnasiums. Tommy Thevenow, the world's greatest shortstop and pinch hitter, if we believe the record of the world series, is demanding the amazing sum of $8000 for his 1927 bit from the Cardinals at present.

The unbelievable disparity is just another of those bizarre situations to be found only in baseball. That one man supreme in his department of play should be worth 18 times as much as another, equally important in his sphere, is almost beyond comprehension.

Meet Babe Frankenstein.

THE situation is only partly clarified by the statement that Ruth, through long years of fine playing and through the ball-hoo tactics of New York promotion has been built up into a tremendous box-office attraction—a financial Frankenstein at present.

Ruth will NOT receive the sum he is demanding. Likewise, he will not quit baseball to enter the gymnasium venture. Not unless the bats invade his belly. To do so would be to sacrifice an income of at least $52,000 a year from baseball and as much more from movie and other sources, for a hazardous venture.

Another Incongruity.

As for Tommy, doubtless he will be given his pin money of $4000 and be happy ever afterward. Tommy is a young man, however, and the highway to future opulence is ahead of him. Plenty of time to join Ruth in becoming money mad.

THE Cardinals now have only two holdouts, where the Yanks have 10. Pitcher Flint Rhem is the other Cardinal balky one. The combined offer to Rhem and Thevenow would scarcely be one-tenth of what Ruth is demanding.

Breadon seems to be driving a hard bargain; but he argues that the comparison with Ruth is not just, since Ruth attained his eminence after long years and plenty of advertising. He draws them at the rate, besides playing ball. It would be foolish to argue that fans go just to see Tommy Thevenow play, as they certainly do to watch Ruth's clutch.

Also, Breadon points to the big and constant attendances and higher prices assessed against the public as enabling New York to pay his men better.

Such salary incongruities happen throughout the business world constantly, one firm being able to pay a much higher wage for precisely the same sort of service than another not so prosperous.

In the meantime, in cold figures, the situation tends to excite popular sympathy for Rhem and Thevenow. But you can't cash sympathy.

More Discrepancies.

THE last of the major heavy-weight eliminator fight next Thursday night will see another astonishing contrast of a different sort. Madison Square Garden will be

Size Not Always Essential.

SIZE is not always successful; but, everything else being equal, it is the balance of power. Yet John L. Sullivan found size was not always a guarantee of success when, as a 130-pound heavyweight champion, with crushing punch, he failed to defeat the 155-pound Charley Mitchell in France. Mitchell's cleverness enabled him to outwit Sullivan and gain a draw, after more than 30 rounds of fighting.

So Mike may win through his 15-round go next Thursday night. Whichever wins, it is hoped that the victory will be more decisively accomplished than was the case in the recent eliminations.

It was McTigue, by the way, who proved the only eliminator able to finish an opponent with a knockout. He did that to the fading Paul Benkert. Not many expect him to do it to Sharkey, the Boston Ghost.

Why Men Prefer Popular Cigars.

Is it the uniform quality? Is it the aroma? Is it the blend? Experts themselves often disagree on what one feature makes a cigar popular. What is the main reason for the growing demand for San Felice at $2? Is it the special combination of tobacco used; is it the fragrance of the smoke; is it an extraordinary grace; or the smoothness of the wrapper? There is a difference of opinion. What is your view, Mr. Smoker? Try a San Felice today and tell us which of the cigar's qualities you consider responsible for its tremendous growth. Perhaps it is that mild sexy cigar you are looking for. It costs only 5c to find out.

Only a Few Players Missing as Browns Start Second Week of Training Grind—Hornby Visits Camp and Appears to Be in Condition.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., Feb. 28.—As the second week of training starts for the Browns, Manager Dan Howley has nearly all of his men in camp. A few straggled in yesterday, but the main contingent made its presence known early today. The new arrivals were amazed at the advance shown by the pitchers and catchers.

The total of the Browns in camp a personage than Rogers Hornby, former manager of the Cardinals, now proud champions of the world. Hornby, accompanied by Roger Bresnahan and Jim Tierney, secretary of the Giants, proved to be an emissary of John McGraw, who it seems found he had in his Sarasota camp a player belonging to the Browns.

The player in question is James Hawkins, once a star at the University of California. Picked up by a Brownie scout two years ago, he was signed and ordered to report to Tarpon Springs. He never did and as a natural result was placed on the ineligible list by the American League. This spring he was recommended to McGraw and signed with no knowledge that he ever had been signed by the Browns. Judge Landis was apprised of the state of affairs and Hawkins was ordered to the Browns' camp. Hornby seems in condition. His hands were lined with callouses and he said he had been doing nothing for the past week but hitting. He stated that he hadn't felt a twinge of the old trouble in his back and that he was looking forward to his best season.

Anstett Will Not Coach.

The familiar face of Jimmy Austin probably will be missing from the Browns' coaching lines this coming season. According to present plans, the work on the lines will be done by Manager Howley and his assistant, Bill Killefer. Austin, however, will have the important job of seeing to it that the bench is kept lively.

No great changes are planned in the general training layout. With so many more athletes to supervise, Howley will include hitting in the camp menu. The first week saw none of this done, having been given up entirely to the getting into condition of the pitchers and catchers. Great advances were made. George Blaholder, especially, could step in the box and go through his regular stint without hurting himself at all. Falk also is about "ripe," as is young Walter Stewart, who, as the days go on, impresses more and more.

Boehmer, Sigoloff and Smith Get Places in Tennis Rankings.

Three St. Louis tennis players have been named in the national junior and boys' ranking for 1926, according to the lists announced by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Joseph T. Smith of the Forest Park Tennis Club received the No. 11 position in the junior singles. This ranking was a surprise because of the excellent material among the juniors during the 1926 season. Smith is the present St. Louis district junior champion.

Charles Sigoloff was placed No. 6. The pair won the Western junior doubles title at Culver, Ind., last year. It is the first time that a St. Louis team has ever been placed in the first ten in the national junior doubles ranking.

Junior Boehmer, St. Louis boys' singles champion, was placed No. 13 in the national boys' ranking. Paired with S. T. Garrity of Chicago, young Boehmer was given No. 12 in the boys' doubles.

He is O.K.

Here's a true story from the pages of life: Paul Barrett was a likable chap, made friends wherever he went. In the business world, he had a way of greeting people and impressing them favorably.

When it came to social life, it was the same thing... he was a hail fellow, well met, and spent his money freely... all too freely for his own good and the good of those who trusted him.

It's the old, old story of trying to "keep up with the Jones'." As time went on, the credit books of formerly friendly merchants were closed to him, and an otherwise likable chap, found himself in troubled circumstances. His credit was gone, and with it the confidence of those who trusted him.

How much better would it have been to emulate his more conservative friend, Jim Hayden, who always managed to live within his means, paid his bills promptly when they came due, and built up a reputation in business and among his friends that stood him in good stead.

When the time came to go into business for himself, everyone... from his banker to the merchants who sold him his complete stock of goods... received the same report on his credit rating when they inquired— "Who, Jim Hayden? Oh, yes...he's O.K."

Jimmy Delaney at Point of Death

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 28.—LITTLE hope was held out today for the recovery of Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight boxer, who has blood poisoning in his left arm. He has undergone two operations and submitted to a blood transfusion since being admitted to a local hospital last week. His condition became worse last night.

Delaney splintered a bone in his left arm during a fight with Maxie Rosenbloom at Cincinnati two weeks ago and it became infected.

Owner Ruppert Has Not Received Bambino's Letter

When Shown Copy Dating Demands, He Says Someone Else Wrote It.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, was hopeful today of adjusting matters with Babe Ruth, who wants $100,000 a year. "I will make no forecast on the salary issue," said the Colonel. "That must be adjusted in a private conference with Ruth. The public is not interested in Babe's pay check."

Ruppert expects the home-run king to visit him about the middle of the week. He said he had received no letter from Ruth demanding a two-year contract at $100,000 a year and refund of $7700 fines.

When a copy of the letter sent by Ruth from Los Angeles was shown him, Ruppert mused: "It's a great letter even though Babe didn't write it. I feel that someone else did the writing and Babe merely nodded."

Week May See Change in Prep Basket Race

Christian Brothers Coming First After Beating St. Louis High Team.

St. Louis University High and Christian Brothers High are scheduled to play two games each week in the Preparatory League basketball race. The junior high team still retain the lead, a game ahead of Christian Brothers who came back into prominence last week by giving the Billikens their first defeat of the year.

Western Military Academy is a full game behind Christian Brothers and McBride drew up to a half game behind Western. The leaders have only four games left to play. McBride has a mathematical chance of tying for first place with Western.

The Christian Brothers have shown good form to come through victorious as McBride, somewhat erratic this year, is rather dangerous. Last week McBride surprised by trimming Western. On Friday Christian Brothers meets Country Day and should have little trouble in coping.

St. Louis U. High's job for the week takes on about the same proportions. The young Billikens Coach Stanton play Wednesday Western and Chambliss on Friday.

Schedule and standings:

Country Day vs. St. Louis U. High	8:30
McBride vs. Christian Brothers	8:30
WEDNESDAY
St. Louis vs. Western	8:00
FRIDAY

CARDINALS TO CARRY NINE PITCHERS THROUGHOUT 1927 CAMPAIGN.

RING AND DYER ONLY NEW MEN ON HILL STAFF

Two Outfielders, Clark and Roettger, Are Likely to Be Retained—One of Young Catchers in Camp Will Get Berth.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff. AVON PARK, Fla., Feb. 28.—Even at this early date, before the infielders and outfielders have arrived at camp, it is possible to outline with fair accuracy the probable personnel of the Cardinal squad which will defend the 1927 baseball campaign. It is even possible to predict with equal confidence the men who will comprise the squad after the league rules force a reduction to 25 players.

There are many young athletes in uniform here, but except for two young outfielders from Syracuse, none is expected to tarry with the squad after the season is well under way. The pitchers and two of the young catchers were brought to camp chiefly to assist the Cardinals in preparing for the pennant race. There are three young catchers, Abbott, Nadelson and Chambers, and if one of them displays talent he will be kept on the roster as a third string catcher.

Arrival this morning of Frank Slider, veteran catcher obtained from the New York Giants last summer, assures the club of a good supply of experienced backstoppers. Snyder is fat, but appeared to be in good condition otherwise. He spent a good part of the winter outdoors and wears a pair of tan.

Including Flint Kehm, on the assumption that he is such a good pitcher and baseball is such a well paying business that he is sure to be signed up before long, there are nine pitchers, not including Al Sotheron, who probably will go through the season in a Cardinal uniform.

Six of the pitchers are right-handers and three southpaws. Alexander, Bell, Hahn of Keen, Kehm and Ring will do the right-handed hurling for the champions.

TWO UNSIGNED CARDS

Tommy Thevenow (Top) and Flint Kehm.

and Sherdel, Reinhart and Dyer will constitute the southpaw section of the staff.

Chambers Likely to Stay. The battery department also will include O'Farrell, manager and the best catcher in the league, and Frank Snyder and one of the youngsters, probably Frank Chambers, who will be in uniform tomorrow. That makes a total of 12, still not including Sotheron and leaves 13 places for infielders and outfielders.

The Cardinals carried six infielders last season and it is a good bet that the same six, with Frisch taking Hornsby's place, will constitute the inner line of defense and reserves during the 1927 campaign. They are Bottomley, Frisch, Thevenow and Bell, the regular players, and the infield and Jake Flowers and George Toporcer, substitutes.

Toporcer can fill in at short or second and Flowers can play short, second or first base. If anything happened to Bell, Frisch could shift over to third and one of the utility men could take the second base duties in an emergency.

That leaves seven places for outfield candidates and in view of the uncertainty as to the future of Ray Blades and Chick Hafey, it is probable that the seven fly chasers, who will be in uniform tomorrow, will be carried well along into the season. Blades' return to top form, if he is to return, will be slow. It may take more than a month for the injured knee to regain sufficient strength to make it wise for Ray to go to the outfield, but he is such a valuable man and will be needed so badly that he will be given as much time as he wants and will be advised constantly to go slow in preparing.

Hafey Will Take His Time. Hafey also will be given plenty of time. He underwent an operation, for sinus trouble last fall, in the hope that impaired vision would be corrected. The vision impairment caused him much trouble in the late stages of the pennant campaign and was responsible for his failure to catch several misjudged flies in the world series.

Blades is counted on as the regular left-fielder, with Hafey second choice. Doubtful, of course, has a strange hold on the center field job and Southworth, is the right-fielder. Some fly chasers play right field, but Southworth makes a business of it.

Wattie Holm was the fifth outfielder last season and he will be a candidate for a job this year and will be retained as a utility fly chaser, certainly. Then there are two recruit outfielders from Syracuse, Danny Clark and Walter Roettger. Clark is looked upon as a great prospect, because of his hitting ability. Roettger was a good hitter and a good fielder in the International League, having been selected by sport writers in the circuit for the all-International League team. He was one of the most popular outfielders, receiving a vote that lacked only a few points of being unanimous. Clark and Roettger undoubtedly will be retained until it is definitely known whether Blades and Hafey will be able to do their stuff.

Fitz Fought 360 Times Without Getting a Scar on His Head

"Ruby Robert," by Robert H. Davis. The Story of Bob Fitzsimmons

But He Broke All Knuckles of His Right Hand, One by One, in Bout With Jeffries in 1902.

INSTALMENT XII.

IN the ring Bob Fitzsimmons had a habit of waving from the hips with his left foot far forward. When Fitzsimmons struck, it was with deadly accuracy. He may have been defective as a boxer and graceless on his feet, but nine times out of ten, when he started a fight or left for the pole of the jaw, that's where it landed, and the rest was silence.

He was a perfect judge of distance and a master of timing. Any fighter who would mix it with Fitz did so at his own peril. The closer one got to Fitz, the harder he was hit. He won at least 20 fights at such close range that the impact of the wallop was heard before the spectator saw the blow start.

When Bob was in jeopardy he covered up instinctively and remained so until his head cleared, emerging from a dazed condition to acute consciousness. He was quick to take advantage of the slightest opening and could hit from any position with either hand. He fought more than 360 fights, and when he died there was not a single professional scar upon his head or shoulders, such was the magnificence of his defense.

Broke Knuckles on Jeff.

LI the knuckles of his right hand, including the thumb, were smashed, in the fight with Jeffries at San Francisco in 1902. He had cut the California boy to ribbons, but he could not administer the knockout. He broke his four finger knuckles on Jeffries' jaw, one at a time, and the thumb for a finish.

"I felt them bust in my glove like pieces of chalk," he said afterward. "No use. I then let go with my thumb at his temple."

CANADIAN HOCKEY OUTFIT TO EXHIBIT ON LOCAL RINK SOON. The Crescent hockey team of Quebec will be here Wednesday or Thursday for a series of exhibitions. The team is now in Kansas City, where it will exhibit tomorrow. It is slated to take part in the tournament at Duluth March 21 and is filling in the time on the road.

Carson Breckenridge, a former St. Louis boy, is goal tender of the squad, which includes a number of college stars. No games have been arranged for the stay here as yet. Wyeth H. Houston is manager and the outfit is at present quartered in the Baltimore Hotel, Kansas City.

"Y" to Kansas City.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team, which tied for second place in the Monday night division at Sherman Park, will go to Kansas City March 20 to play the "Y" there. Coach Lorber of the "Y" will take 10 men on the trip.

BOB FITZSIMMONS.

When it 't' 'im, the thumb went, too. It busted like a chocolate cream. I never struck another blow. I was through."

He was a brave and honest gentleman, full of fine impulses, generous and compassionate. He had the respect of the community, and although he died poor, he left no embarrassing obligations. He contracted four marriages during his lifetime. There was one son by his first wife, and three children—Bobby, Martin and Rosie—by his second, Rose Julian Fitzsimmons, whom he married in 1894. Rose died in 1904 and in 1905 Bob married Julia Gifford, a singer. After a few months they separated, and in 1915 Bob married Temo Ziller, an Italian woman, with whom he lived happily until his death on Oct. 22, 1917.

He had a remarkable sense of humor and was constantly playing practical jokes on acquaintances.

A Lecture for Bob Jr.

DOWN deep in his heart he was a thoroughly domestic man, fond of his children and anxious that they should conduct themselves properly in public. One day his son, Bobby, stood on a stepping stone on the Bath Beach residence and announced, in a loud voice, that he was the son of the "champion of the world." Bob went out and spanked the kid in public, after which he made this short philosophical address:

"Don't get in the 'abit of sayin' that you are the son of the champion, because at any moment you may be called upon to stop talking about it. On the other 'and, don't go around telling who you are unless somebody asks who you are."

This same Robert Junior grew up into a youth of magnificent physical proportions. He had his father's chest and shoulders, plus perfectly straight legs. In complexion and mannerisms he was a facsimile of the sire; he had the same blue eyes, the same forehead, and the same light, silken hair. He had his father's long and powerful arms, and their fists were exact duplicates. This resemblance, however, ended with the visible things. Out of the ring these men were replicas in the ring there was a perceptible difference, in favor of the father.

Thevenow Has a Manager, Says Cardinal Owner

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AVON PARK, Fla., Feb. 28.—Sam Bredon, owner of the Cardinals, when asked this morning if he considered Tommy Thevenow as a serious hold-out, said that there was very little difference between what the club offered and Thevenow demanded.

"His demands are not exorbitant," Bredon said, "but he has a manager. When Rickey conferred with him recently, Thevenow said the offer was the best he could get, but he made was all right, but he wanted to talk to somebody over the telephone. He made three or four long distance calls during the conference and Rickey finally lost his patience and came home. We had trouble in the past with players and with managers, and we don't want to start the same thing with another promising young ball player."

Thevenow, at his home in Madison, Ind., yesterday said he wanted $5000 a year while the club had asked him to sign a three-year contract, calling for $5000 annually.

Walter Hands Challenger Defeats Beating — "Gate" Draws $6000.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28.—Whatever hopes Gene Sarazen has of tying a can to Walter Hagen's golf goat are dashed, for a time. Hagen hung a decisive defeat onto his persistent challenger yesterday, 16 up and seven to play, in a 72-hole match.

Sarazen, starting in a flash of form, rapidly lost his pace and Hagen, by persistent drives, forced his lead to eight at the start of the final 18 holes yesterday.

The match netted $6000 in gate receipts which the professionals divided.

Penn and Cornell, tied in three place with four wins and four losses, still are possibilities for a top spot with either Princeton or Dartmouth. Columbia has won only three games in seven and Yale one in eight.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and seals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agents for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Kate Condon Scott Says New Orleans Suicide Was Husband Who Left Her in 1903.

Special to The Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—Kate Condon Scott, known on the light opera stage 20 years ago as Kate Condon, has identified as the husband of her youth William B. Victor, a wealthy New Orleans suicide. Victor went to New Orleans in 1919, made a fortune in real estate, and last September killed himself in the Chess Club. He had always been silent as to his life before going to New Orleans.

Kate Condon of Bloomington, Ill., made her debut with the Castle Square Opera Company in St. Louis in 1903. Later in the same year she met Edward Burke Scott, who was the advance agent for a theatrical company, and they were married at New Haven, Conn., May 16, 1903.

Scott had left Princeton University to become drama critic of the New York Press. Later he managed for May Irwin and Frank Daniels. He was a son of Marie Prescott, an actress. He disappeared in December, 1903. Mrs. Scott had searched for him for 20 years.

A relative called her attention to a report of the suicide in New Orleans of a man who had 50 suits of clothes. Scott always had an unusually large wardrobe. Thomas Condon, her brother, who is a lawyer, went to New Orleans with a picture of Scott, which was recognized by Victor's associates as that of the suicide.

Victor left his $185,000 estate to five partners. Mrs. Scott seeks a widow's share, 50 per cent.

WALT WHITMAN SCHOOL SAVED

Admirers of Poet Raise $60 to Purchase Building. NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The schoolhouse in which Walt Whitman taught at Woodbury, L. I., has been saved from the wreck. It was announced last night by Hardwick Nevins, a writer. The building was bought at auction Saturday for $18 by Frank Velson, a carpenter, who said he would demolish it. Whitman taught in the school in 1837-38, when he was 18 years old.

Nevins said he had induced half a dozen Whitman admirers, including Deems Taylor, composer; Edna St. Vincent Millay and Edwin Arlington Robinson, poets, and others to contribute to a rescue fund. Velson agreed to accept $60 and this amount has been raised.

FINDS MODERN LIFE TREND PESSIMISTIC

Ethical Society Lecturer Cites
Mark Twain, Lewis and Dreiser as Evidence of It.

"It casts the shadow of its interrogation mark athwart our path," said Henry J. Golding, speaking of "The Underlying Strain of Pessimism in Modern Life," at Sheldon Memorial Auditorium yesterday. Golding, leader of the New York Ethical Society, was addressing the St. Louis Ethical Society. He continued:

"In America as well as in the Old World, it finds utterance in a succession of notable writers. Poe, Mark Twain, Henry Adams, Jack London, Edgar Lee Masters, Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Sherwood Anderson and Eugene O'Neill express in varying degrees a somber sense of spiritual frustration. "During the last few weeks an epidemic of suicide among the young has redirected attention to this undercurrent of despair.

"Disquieting evidence of widespread nervous instability is revealed by the statistics of mental disease. Insanity is growing at a rate greatly exceeding that of the increase of population. "Symptomatic also is a prevalent cynicism, which flouts ideals, derides marriage, decries those concerned for progress and is sceptical of the deeper emotions. The yearning of those distracted souls who seek refuge from themselves in Oriental mysticism evidences the malaise of our time. And is not the forced note of our very optimism revealing specially the religious optimism that seeks to blind the sufferers to their ills by denying the reality of pain and evil?" Golding attributed the pessimism to current trend of philosophy and psychology, and to neglect of spiritual qualities in a quest for material things.

Two Children Killed by Smoke. By the Associated Press. Spino, 6 years old, and his brother Frank, 3, were trapped in their bedroom as fire swept through an apartment building. The children, overcome by smoke, were rescued by firemen, but both died two hours later. Vincent Spino, father of the children, said he thought his wife was looking after the children as he escaped from the burning building. His wife was found unconscious in a hallway.

THE RHYMING
OPTIMIST
By Aline Michaelis.

AWAY WITH CARE.

AWAY with care! There is enough of joy to fill the flying hours. Old heads grow foolish, wiser is the boy who treads life's Springtime bowers. The youth is wiser who has never learned too much of all Earth asks, who has not bound his wilful heart that yearned for mirth to some dull task. Away with care! There is enough of bliss for him who, seeking peace, enough of freedom in the fresh wind's kiss, of hope in budding rose. Too long have anxious eyes gone courting grief when, had they turned from pain, their time for weeping would have been as brief as fall of April rain. Away with care! Old folly's reign is done, old thoughts of useless woe! With lifted faces looking to the sun, now bravely on we go!

Birth of the Blues.

NEW YORK.—Birth of the blues is likely to be the national anthem of the dressmakers this season. The vogue for that color is expected to come to full growth with spring. It is already making its appearance in the Southern resorts. Other colors are emphasized such as rose, pinks, beige, pale green and banana yellow. The greens are grass and leaf shades.

MEDITATIONS
—OF A—MARRIED WOMAN
By HELEN ROWLAND

THE SENTIMENTAL NUMBER.

This is the day when even a hard-boiled woman weakens a little at the memory of her first love; and a soft-boiled one fills up and sops over with tender memories of every man who ever pretended to love her.

Taking the sentiment out of life is like taking the rose-colored shade off an electric lamp—it leaves it so cold and hard and unalluring.

Love and the toothache are two things at which every man laughs—until one of them happens to strike him.

Anybody under 90 who can think of St. Valentine's day without a thrill of hope or a throb of memory, has rheumatism of the emotions, paralysis of the imagination and ossification of the heart.

It is not the sketchiness of her clothes, nor even the frankness of her talk or her manners that makes the modern girl so hard for men to fall in love with; it is her loss of that inner glow—that fine thing called Sentiment—which has taken away all her glamour and stolen the light from her eyes.

The beautiful thing about young love is that it is all incense—and so little commonsense.

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, "By jove! This is St. Valentine's day! I'll send the Little Woman a box of flowers!"—and then promptly forgot all about it?

Somehow, a man always treasures the memory of his first love as he would a beautiful "old master"; but the memory of the one before the last holds no more charm for him than a mid-Victorian crayon.

A woman may part with her back hair, her beauty, her youth and her last lover—but not until she loses her last drop of sentiment does she part with that supreme gift of the gods, her spirit of Eternal Youth!

THE WOMAN OF IT
By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

"HOW I KEEP MY FIGURE"

ARRIVE at school, punch the time clock with the same vigor that my fellow-sufferers in the way up, have punched me, and painfully drag my feet up four flights of stairs. I enter the stuffy classroom and decide to open the windows, but I can't find the window-pole. I explore the six floors of our building for the said pole. I don't find it. I huddle back to my room to learn that the teacher next door had momentarily borrowed the pole. I open the windows. One of my little darlings of little intelligence and less underwear closes them. She lumps over and reopens them. She closes them—the fight is on! I creep back and do my stuff over. She stealthily approaches the source of the "winter winds" and I stop her midway by thundering out my authority. She is squelching. I am freed by this time, but I'd rather die of goose flesh than admit defeat by closing the window.

The class secretary asks for the roll book. I disclaim all knowledge of its whereabouts. I wearily plod upstairs to the General office and inquire if the clerical staff has taken my roll. It hasn't, and I return to my classroom and see the roll book on my chair. I have been inadvertently sitting on it!

The change-bell rings. The second-year girls file in and cope with the intricacies of the conjugation "en aller" on the board. They don't know their lesson. I gallop up and down the aisles, tearing my hair and shrieking of the dire fate of students who intend to take Regents and don't know the conjugation of "en aller." One young lady makes a face at me; so do the others. I graciously give the whole gang zeros. They label me as a French nut not on my menu, and I classify them as perfect examples of low-grade morons.

A messenger tells me I am wanted in the office. I go there, to be met by an irate parent who wants to know why I "left back" her Annie when she "speaks the French sumpin' grand." I sweetly explain that what falls as music on her East Bronx ears is nothing but cow-bells to me, and that Annie may be clear profit to her mother, but she's a "total loss without any insurance" to the modern language department. Mamma departs, muttering something about "keeping America for Americans" and "them crazy frogs." I am highly flattered that she has mistaken me for a Frenchwoman. Native Parisians never do!

I amble back to my room to find the class in an uproar. I serve everybody with another round of zeros. I tear the remaining three hairs from my scalp. The change-bell rings, and the entire performance is "encored."

Yes, I keep my figure—but my disposition—bah!

BYRON MAWR.

Tearing Passion to Tatters.
The alleged love letters of Robert Ames, actor, to Helene Lambert, former hostess in a night club, have just been given out by the attorney for Miss Lambert, who has started a $200,000 breach of promise suit because Mr. Ames married Muriel Oakes, a New York society girl. Here are two of the tender missives:

"I love you more today than I did yesterday; more this minute than I did last, and much more this second than the one just passed."

"I. R. Mine, I. R. Yours, O. O."

We can only suggest that the Western Union hire Mr. Ames to compose its next year's collection of canned Valentines.

A Logical Conclusion.

I ain't the kind to wall and whine. I know there ain't no Santa Claus. Still, lemme ask a question—

Try Chinese Cooking at Home

By Jeanette Young Norton

Chinese Fish Soup.

Select a two and a half pound flounder, fillet the fish and take head, bones and trimmings and put into a pint of water and a pint of soup stock. Add a minced onion, chopped celery, a little parsley and a leek. Cook for a half hour and strain. Reheat, season, poach the fillets on top, then set them aside. Thicken the soup with a little corn starch dissolved in water; when thickened add the fillets and a little chopped parsley and serve.

Chicken Mushroom Soup.

Prepare a chicken and boil in the usual way, adding a minced onion, celery tops, parsley and a carrot to the broth. When the chicken is done remove it and what slightly boil out the breast meat and set aside; also the legs and side bones. Throw all the rest back into the broth and stew until all the goodness is out. Then strain, cool, remove the grease, then reheat. Season with a quarter pound of fresh mushrooms that have been sautéed in butter and drained. Also add the chicken breast cut in dice and a teaspoonful of minced parsley. Serve boiled rice with the soup.

Chicken Chop Suey.

This dish is unknown in China. The name means food cut in small pieces. Cover the bottom of a frying pan with oil or melted butter, add two cupsful of peeled and sliced water chestnuts, two cupsful of mushrooms cut up in small pieces, fresh or canned, two cupsful of bamboo sprouts, canned, and two cupsful of celery cut in tiny strips. Fry all for two minutes, then add a pint of chicken broth and cook for 20 minutes. Then add a small boned chicken cut in small pieces. The chicken should first be fried a few minutes in butter. Then it is added to the rest of the ingredients. Season, add thickening enough to make the gravy the consistency of honey. Meantime fry a half package of noodles in hot fat, very quickly. Place in the bottom of the serving dish and turn the suoy over all. The Soy sauce comes ready bottled. The noodles in packages like our own macaroni. Chinese mushrooms are canned, the onions and water chestnuts are also canned. So even if we are not near a Chinese market center we may still make the dishes.

Milton Work's Bridge Pointers

(In response to numerous requests, Mr. Work will write on Contract for the next few days instead of Auction Bridge. During that time, his daily Auction Bridge Pointer will be omitted, but will be resumed later.)

CONTINUING the subject of Contract Bridge, commenced in this series of articles Saturday.

It is important to set aside at once the prevalent idea that it is a new game. The game appeared in Europe, and was known about in America, years ago; it became a recognized game in the early part of the last decade. As early as that, the Card Committee of the Whist Club was asked to draft laws for Contract, so that there would be a standard American code. This the committee declined to do, being unanimously of the opinion that the game was not fitted for club and social play in this country. The club and its committee are still of the same opinion and, therefore, there are no Contract laws emanating from the organization that for years has supplied the card players of America with the laws, first for Bridge and then for Auction Bridge.

There is, however, no dearth of Contract rules and customs. These may be found in various spots in the United States and Canada, and the divergence of their provisions (particularly in the matter of counting) is even wider than the distribution of the spots. In this series of articles an effort will be made to clarify the most important of them and explain their principal differences.

All Contract counts, however widely they diverge in trick and game values and bonus allowances, have the same basic principle, viz: That it be necessary in order to count for tricks (below the line) to bid the number to be counted. This same principle has been followed abroad for the last 15 years; the game there being known generally as "Plafond." It has never attained great popularity in England, but has found more favor on the Continent—particularly in Paris, where it was christened.

Another article on Contract tomorrow.

Jerseys to Jersey.

NEW YORK.—When New Yorkers motor out to the country for a week-end, whether it be Westchester, Long Island, the two-piece jersey sport costume occupies a prominent place in the accompanying suitcase. The costumes of such little space and are so unsuited to wrinkles that nothing seems to replace them.

Now there is nothing stupid about the members of the family of Robert the Rat. After these or four of them had mysteriously disappeared the word went around that there was a mysterious enemy waiting for them outside the barn, so that it was no longer safe to visit the henhouse. After that of Robert's family remained in and under the barn, seldom showing so much as a whisker outside. In vain Whitey sat on the roof of the barn and waited and watched. He grew hungrier and hungrier and hungrier. But patience is a virtue possessed by Whitey and other members of his family. So he sat and sat and sat and watched and watched and watched. At last he began to wonder if it could be possible that he had caught the very last rat. If he had he would have to get something else for a meal. He began to think about those hens down there.

Now Farmer Brown's Boy is wise in the ways of the little people of feathers and fur. When he saw Whitey catch a rat he knew that Whitey had probably had enough for the present, so he did not hesitate to let the hens out in the henyard for a run. But when he wasn't certain that Whitey had had a rat, Farmer Brown's Boy wisely decided not to put temptation in his way and so did not let the hens out for a run. So Whitey waited in vain for a rat and in vain for a hen, and, of course, all the time he was growing hungrier and hungrier.

Then came an afternoon when Whitey had been gone nearly all day hunting for food elsewhere. Just about dusk he returned to Farmer Brown's barn. He had had no luck and he was very, very hungry. He looked over to Farmer Brown's house. Something black and white was moving in the dusk. On silent wings Whitey flew over. What made Jimmy Skunk look up just when he did, not even Jimmy himself knows. He saw Whitey. Whitey was reaching for him with those great claws of his. Jimmy promptly used that little seven-gun he carries with him. Right then and there Whitey lost his appetite. But he wasn't the only one that lost an appetite. You see, at the time Jimmy had just been going to enter the shed of Farmer Brown's house, and Jimmy's perfume was so strong that it quite took away the appetite of Farmer Brown's Boy, Farmer Brown and Mother Brown.

Never touch your face with any but TRUE complexion soap

THE first rule in modern skin care is to keep the skin clean and pores free of accumulations. Use powder and make-up all you wish. But never leave them on overnight.

That means soap and water. But it means, too, a TRUE COMPLEXION SOAP. A soap made to protect and beautify.

Thus, largely on expert advice, millions use Palmolive Soap; touch their faces with no other. It is made of cosmetic oils. It is made for one purpose only—to protect and beautify the skin.

Kindness

By LUCY LOWELL

HAVE you ever tried making a hobby of kindness?

Do this some time just for the novelty; try the experiment of being consistently good natured and kind for an entire day. Start on first thing in the morning and don't weaken as the turbulent hours wear by. And see how light and joyous and rested you'll feel by night!

It's what the old world needs, more kindness. You may find yourself slipping, you may catch back the sharp word when it's fairly on your lip and find yourself scrambling to twist the frown into a smile.

For kindness isn't acquired in a moment; it's a thing to be learned the same as any other art. But once you've got it, it's yours for keeps.

And if you're one of those who have learned it pays to be kind around the office, that short manner and unbridled speech run business, have you also discovered it's just as important to be kind at home?

Sarcasm, the wit that sears, the taking favors for granted attitude that you'd never dream of offering the world at large may be accepted by the members of your family as only your way.

But it's not a pleasant way; it's not a thing that brings peace and happiness to those near you.

Smile once in a while; thank the folks for things they do for you and mean it; tell them good by when you leave and say you're glad to see them when you come in. Small things all, but they loom large in daily living.

Kindness is not a thing to be hid on a shelf and taken down upon rare occasions. It is practical and utilitarian, a necessity you cannot afford to do without.

CLEAN HANDS

By Angelo Patri.

Angelo Patri is just the principal of a New York grade school, but the late Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard, said Patri is doing more for common-school education than any other person in America. This school, a model in every respect, is a mecca for teachers from all parts of the country.

IT IS NOT possible for us to do good work in whatever field of activity we engage unless we have clean hands. Starting early in the morning the first thing one ought to do is make certain the hands are washed clean. Mothers who are about to feed children and families ought to be very sure about that. Food handled by unwashed hands is likely to make a host of them sick on the dirty hands of little children. Little ones are always putting their hands to their faces and into their mouths and so bring sickness upon themselves. If the hands are clean there is not so much danger.

A piece of good soap and plenty of hot water handy suggests cleanliness to the children. I have seen delightful little cakes of soap that have Mother Goose pictures on them in color. Any child would love to wash his hands with a cake of soap that had Mother Hubbard's dog dancing upon it. And if you can't have a decorated soap, any of the colorful, sweet smelling sorts that make fluffy lather will do. Lather in warm water makes foam that rises high and in trying to capture a handful of foam, hands are washed clean. I have another reason for asking for clean hands all around. Hands are a symbol of what goes on behind them. They are the hand maids of the mind, the expression of the soul. What you think, you do. What you do is you. Then if what you do is clean and decent, kind and lovely, there you are. You have set a high pattern for life's weaving and your sun will set in happiness.

It is not easy to rear a child in the way you think he should go. It gets no easier. The most one can do is all too little. Yet one must do all that he can for there is not bitterness like that lying in the thought, "But for my selfishness, my stupidity, the child would have been right." One must do his best then to come before the child with clean hands.

I thought of this today as Miss Lavinia read from the Bible. She reads well and impressively and today she selected the twenty-fourth psalm that reads like a trumpet call. In the third verse comes the question, who shall ascend unto the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in His holy place? And then the answer. He that hath clean hands. Miss Lavinia paused there, and then went on and I saw young Peter, the imp of the Fifth, take a quick look at his hands, rub off a speck with the corner of his handkerchief and then attend to the reading once more. He would stand in the holiness like that lying in the thought, "But for my selfishness, my stupidity, the child would have been right." One must do his best then to come before the child with clean hands.

A New Mystery Thriller

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Death strikes Garrett Folsom while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. It is thought at first he is a stroke victim, but investigation shows he has been stabbed to death beneath the water.

Folsom's swimming companions had been Roger Neville, a business partner; Mrs. Helen Barnaby and Connelia Valdon. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to Ned Barron, known as the copper king.

Anastasia Folsom, eccentric and masterful sister of the man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is learned that the death weapon was a ratchet, an Oriental knife, and that it had been bought on the boardwalk.

It is also established that one Croydon Sears is a fan of curious knives. Anastasia encourages this Riggins, an architect, to work on the case. Dan Pelton, the dead man's nephew, arrives, and notices the curious French dolls in Garrett Folsom's room. He tells Riggins that if the murderer is discovered, some unpleasant things may come to light about his uncle.

CHAPTER 26.

"THEN, I shall have to speak plainly," said Riggins. "You don't place your late uncle on quite so high a pedestal as his sister does."

"No—to be equally frank—I don't. I never liked my uncle, but aside from that, I always felt he was—oh, pshaw, I hate to say it—was a little—"

"Go on."

"Well, understand, I mean I thought, I feared, rather, that there were some transactions in which he was engaged that wouldn't stand the light."

"Discretion?"

"Not in the generally accepted sense of that word, no. But dishonorable—oh, I don't know just how to express it."

"Have you any proofs of these accusations?"

"Oh, they're not really accusations. But I always suspected uncle was up to some devilry, and after I got aunt's wife about his death, I slipped down to his room, where he was staying in New York, and I found a bag full of papers and letters, and I brought it along here with me. Now—well, Mr. Riggins, those documents go to prove that my respected uncle was deserving of very little respect, and that whoever did him in, really did the world of a pretty black deed."

"And so you think it might be better to let sleeping dogs lie—"

"Yes, just that. I'm sure that to open up the hidden life of Garrett Folsom would bring to light truths of such a nature that my aunt would sink under the load of guilt and shame that would attach to his memory."

"You're not exaggerating this, Mr. Pelton?"

"No, I don't think so. I dare say you can guess the sort of nefarious business he carried on."

"From what you say, or rather from what you don't say, I can't help thinking it must be some form of blackmail."

"Yes, that's right. But not any common, ordinary blackmail, or any small jobs. It's merely that he knew a few secrets concerning the lives of several people, mostly his friends—I mean, apparent friends—and over these he had such a fearful hold that they were forced to pay him his price or he exposed."

"This is strong talk, Mr. Pelton."

"But it is true talk. And I have proofs—that is, some proofs. However, I hesitate to bring them forth, because any of them would suffice to throw suspicion on a man who may be entirely innocent."

"And, too, for your aunt's sake, you hesitate to bring forth this new side to the tragedy?"

"Oh, partly for aunt's sake, but more because I feel this way about it. It seems to me that the more my uncle made miserable suffering enough, without being brought to the bar to answer for a murder that they didn't commit. For, naturally, only one man stabbed him, and to lose a lot of facts that would bring suspicion hot upon the heels of a dozen others, seems a terrible thing to do."

"All this is logical and even ethical from the standpoint of your uncle's victims. But, on the other hand, he was murdered, and his murder ought to be avenged. No matter how great a villain Garrett Folsom had been, it doesn't exculpate the man who killed him."

"I suppose not, but as I said, I hate to bring forth such evidence on a lot of innocent men, and then perhaps not strike the right man among them."

"It's a big question, and it will require some thinking over before we can settle it. Look here, isn't Roger Neville an associate in business with your uncle?"

"He was—in some ways. You see, Uncle Garrett had several lines of business and many varied interests, all of which brought in money. Neville was with him in some of these schemes. But I've no reason to think or assume that Roger Neville had any part in or even any knowledge of these things I speak of."

"Well, we must ask Neville."

"Do it guardedly, for if he knows nothing about it, all we want to do is enlighten him."

"Then again, would it not be wise to let your aunt in on this secret?" To be sure, she would be dismayed to learn of your uncle's wrong-doing, but as you have said yourself, Miss Folsom, can stand shocks with fortitude. And it may be she would rather know the truth, however bad, than to be kept in ignorance of it."

"I daresay it may be so. But my aunt so reveres and cherishes her brother's memory, that it would go hard with her to learn he was less than she thought him."

"Well, leaving that question for the moment, let us get down to brass tacks. You see, your aunt has engaged me to investigate this case for her. Now, have I a right to lie down on the beach, it seems to be leading into an unpleasant field? Moreover, is there not a possibility that you are mistaken, at least to the extent or weight of these judgments your uncle held over his victims' heads?"

"You don't see it quite straight, Riggins. I have reason to believe that my uncle, while not what may be called a professional blackmailer, yet had a few victims whose secrets he knew, and whom he brought down to the last degree. I believe that anyone of these—say half a dozen—would have murdered him gladly if they had thought they could do it without getting caught. And now one of them did murder him and get away with it, and to bring forward the evidence I speak of would be to cast suspicion of the whole six—though that's only an approximate number—and lay a black accusation for life on the black majority of innocent ones. And, at the same time, probably not get the real criminal at all."

"How many of these victims you speak of are down here at Ocean Town?"

"That's just the worst of it. I know of two or three, but there may easily be more whom I do not know. For any one of them may be the murderer."

"Complicated situation. And yet, have we a choice in the matter? Must we not follow where the way is pointed out? At any rate, old man, I guess you'd have to let me look through those letters you speak of."

The Riggins chuckled to himself at the thought that Tubby's precious secret was thus openly announced by Pelton.

Riggins looked forward to a diplomatic effort on his part to get the nephew of the dead man to exhibit his uncle's papers. And here he was fairly thrusting them to Riggins' attention.

Was he, though? Was he the ingenious, straightforward character he appeared to be?

His attitude about wanting to shield his uncle's memory as far as possible was all right, but could Riggins be sure that the letters and documents he was now about to inspect were intact when Pelton had found them, or had he tampered with the lot and abstracted any he chose?

It was largely imagination, or instinct, but Tito Riggins did not trust Pelton. He didn't suspect him of having any hand in his uncle's death, but he did think the nephew was glad to inherit his legacy, and that if he could inherit father's nest in any way, he would do so.

So, together, the two men went through the suitcase full of letters and papers.

What do Pelton and Riggins find in Folsom's papers? And who were Folsom's "victims" at Ocean Town?

Hints for Mothers.

When the child's feet become frostbitten soak them for half an hour in a strong solution of alum water. In severe cases a second application may be necessary.

Do not permit your child to go to school without breakfast. This should consist of fruit—which may be fresh or cooked—a cereal with milk and bread and butter—toasted or plain.

If your child takes cold easily, try a cold sponge bath every morning. Have the water from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. At any rate sponge the neck, chest and back with the cold water. Do this quickly and rub thoroughly with the towel.

Jellied Vegetable Ring.

One cup cold water, 3 cups boiling water, 4 level tablespoons gelatin, 1 cup vinegar, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 4 cups celery (cut in small strips), 2 cups shredded cabbage, 2 cups peas, 2 cups small cucumber cubes.

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in boiling water; then add sugar, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, add vegetables. Turn into ring molds, first dipped in cold water, and chill. Remove to serving dish and arrange around jelly thin slices of the meat loaf.

Fill center with boiled salad dressing.

The Greatest Story in the World

It came to pass that the armies of nine Kings fought in the vale of Siddim; and the vale of Siddim was full of slime pits (swamps) and the Kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and those that remained fled to the mountain; and Abram's brother's son, Lot, who dwelt in Sodom, was taken captive with all his goods.

The Bible in Pictures

And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram, the Hebrew. And when Abram heard that Lot was taken captive, he armed his trained servants born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen; and he smote them and pursued them unto Hobah on the left of Damascus; and he brought back his brother Lot and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

The Man on the Sandbox

By L. Davis

TEN LITTLE YANKEES.

TEN little Yankees the papers wouldn't sign; One came into camp and then there were nine.

Nine little Yankees, very odd-rate, One took his pen in hand and then there were eight.

Eight little Yankees (less and less, thank heaven!), One saw a sudden light and then there were seven.

Seven little Yankees stoutly saying "nix!" One had a change of heart and then there were six.

Six little Yankees all that now survive; One made his little cross and then there were five.

Five little Yankees holding out for more; One had to pay his rent and then there were four.

Four little Yankees, stubborn as could be, One heard the call of spring and then there were three.

Three little Yankees left of all the crew; One went to Florida and there were two.

Two little Yankees sitting in the sun; One started warming up and then there was one.

One little Yankee making a home run; Babe signed the document and then there were none.
